TO SEE THE SHOW.

All Germany Waiting for the Day to Come

When Bismarck Will Attack the Kaiser.

A Mutual Hatred That Must Soon Break Out.

Chief Assault Will Be on the Commercial Treaties.

Multitudes Have Asked for Card Admission to the Opening of the Reichstag and Have Had to be Turned Away Unsatisfied.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—As the day for the opening of the reichstag approaches interest increases in the approaching conflict between the kaiser and Bismarck. That there will be a conflict nobody doubts and there is a half suppressed feeling that it may proceed to extremities.

Although out of power, Bismarck is today the most influential man in the German empire. The kaiser is aware of this, and he is aware that a blow at Bismarck would be widely resented.

He bitterly hates the ex-chancellor, who returns his hate with unveiled contempt. The kaiser has several times spoken of bringing Bismarck under personal discipline, but desisted when he saw that even the most sycophantic of his courtiers received the suggestion with dread.

But now there is a general feeling, more suggested than expressed, that the antagonism is about to reach a crisis and that the man who made the empire will exasperate beyond measure the young man who wears the crown.

It is understood that Bismarck's chief assault will be upon the commercial treaties. It is known that Herbert Bismarck has been for some time collecting statistics as to the condition of German agricultural interests, and the probable effect of the treaties opening the German markets to Austria and Hungary.

Those statistics are to be presented by his father in the reichstag, and it is expected that they will produce a profound effect upon the representatives of the agricultural community.

Bismarck has, it is said, given up the idea for the present of attacking the socialists. He has always spoken of the social democracy as the danger most threatening to the empire, but it is said that he has concluded to be silent on that subject at present, in order not to alienate such sympathy as the socialists in the reichstag may choose to extend in his parliamentary fight against the kaiser.

Everybody is asking whether Bismarck will reveal any of the causes that led to his withdrawal. There is good authority for saying that he will not hesitate to enter upon this subject; but will await some inviting or provoking utterance on the part of his opponents. The applications for cards of admission have been so numerous that a multitude have had to be refused.

HE LOVED HIS TEA.

Fostoria, O., Nov. 14.—(Special)—John Crampton, a glass worker, was sentenced to the Toledo workhouse this morning for drunkenness. He had himself locked in the city prison for some time in order to break himself of the drinking habit, but upon being liberated he still had not gained strength to resist his appetite,, and immediately fell into his old habit.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 14.—The so-called intermediate sentence act, under which convicted persons might be sent to prison for an indefinite length of time, depending on whether the prison board thought they behaved themselves well during incarceration or not, has been declared unconstitutional.

D. K. E. FRATERNITY.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 14.—The forty-fifth convention of the D. K. E. fraternity has closed here. Judge Southworth presided. Among the speakers were Hon. Henry Morey, Hon. Frank Hurd, Senator Brice, Louis Winch and Hon. Granville P. Hawes, of New York city.

CANDIDATES FOR PLACE.

McKinley Will Not Have to Hunt for Office Holders.

George Fields, of Toledo, Would Very Much Like to Help Run the Penitentiary for a Time.

Columbus, Nov. 14.—A number of new candidates have come to the front for positions within the gift of the new administration.

B. L. McKelvey, a prominent insurance man of Mt. Vernon, will contest Chairman Hahn's claims to the state insurance commissionership.

For executive clerk to Gov. McKinley, Frank H. Phillips, of Springfield, and W. B. Gatree, secretary of the Washington county republican executive committee, are now mentioned, in addition to Chase Reinhart, of Washington county.

Chambers Young and Frederick Roney, prominent colored men of this city, are candidates for engrossing clerk of the senate.

James Mansfield, also of Columbus, is a candidate for visitors' attendant at the state house.

E. B. Lewis, editor of the New Holland Plain Talk, has shied his castor for message clerk of the senate.

The candidacy of George Fields, a prominent colored republican of Toledo, for member of the board of penitentiary managers, is being much talked of and meeting with a great deal of favor.

Mr. Fields has served two years as a member of the republican state executive committee, and is a substantial business man.

MAY LYNCH HIM.

South McAlister, I. T., Nov. 14.—John E. Thornton, a jeweler, shot and killed his daughter, Laura Amonier, at Krebs, Wednesday night. The dead girl was only 18 years of age, and had been married but six days. Thornton claims that his daughter wrote a letter which displeased him. He is regarded as slightly demented. There is talk, however, of lynching him.

POSTMASTER SHOT.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Arthur A. Boyington, the postmaster of Highland Park, a suburb of this city, was arrested yesterday by a United States marshal on a charge of embezzlement. His shortage is estimated at $2,000. He admitted his guilt, and was held in $5,000 bail to the federal grand jury.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

Both Badly Damaged and the Cargoes Injured.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 14.—The British steamships Plymothian and Victory collided off Lambert's Point, and the damage to both vessels was serious. The Plymothian, loaded with cotton from New Orleans for Liverpool, had coaled, and was departing for her destination, while the Victory, under charter of the North American Transportation company, whose headquarters are at this point, was bound in for cargo.

Through accident, or from some other cause, the vessels collided, with such damage to the former vessel as to create a belief for a time that she would sink. She would probably have gone down had not tugs in that vicinity forced her to the flats.

It is believed that the Plymothian's cargo of cotton is not seriously injured, though she was badly stove in on one side. The Victory's bow was stove in, the hole being an ugly one. Both vessels will require considerable repairs to make them seaworthy. On whose shoulders the blame, if any, will rest, is not known. No one was injured.

PENSION SURGEONS.

Washington, Nov. 14.—(Special)—A new board of examining surgeons has been appointed by the pension bureau, to be located at Fostoria, Seneca county, Ohio. The board consists of Drs. George L. Hoege, E. C. Henry and T. J. Livers. Dr. Hoege is transferred from the Tiffin board, and this vacancy will be filled by the appointment of Dr. H. K. Spooner, of Republic.

THE FAIRFIELD WRECKED.

London, Nov. 14.—The British steamer Fairfield, from Newcastle for Genoa, has been wrecked by the storm in the Bay of Biscay. The crew was picked up after suffering much hardship in boats.

STOCK BREEDER FAILS.

Fresno, Cal., Nov. 14.—S. N. Straube, a breeder of thoroughbred horses, has failed. Liabilities may reach $150,000, with assets of possibly $100,000.

MORTON WANTS HIS CASH.

The Vice President Sues Charles P. Baker,

A Plunger, Whose Income is Forty Thousand a Year and Who Can't Pay His Debts.

New York, Nov. 14.—(Special)—Vice President Levi P. Morton would like very much to collect a little bill of $68,838 88 which he holds against Millionaire Chas. P. Palmer.

Although Mr. Palmer draws regularly an income of $40,000 per annum from the $7,000,000 estate left by his father he has found it utterly impossible to settle his indebtedness to Mr. Morton.

Mr. Palmer has owed these thousands to Vice President Morton for several years and he has refused to settle.

The reasons given by the friends of Mr. Palmer for his not being able or willing to pay this debt are various. For one thing he is a "high roller," and so finds it impossible to make both ends meet and live like a "gentleman" on a paltry $40,000 a year. Mr. Palmer also plunges occasionally, it is said, on the horses, and that makes a considerable drain on his purse.

The chief cause, though, of Mr. Palmer's lack of ready cash is that which occasioned his debt to Vice President Morton. He has long had a habit of taking "flyer" in stocks. Sometimes he strikes the market right and he wins large sums, but often he is fleeced like any other ordinary "lamb."

Vice President Morton long since became tired of waiting for Mr. Palmer to settle with him and sought relief in the courts. His lawyers, Robinson, Bright, Biddle & Ward, of No. 150 Broadway, brought suit against Mr. Palmer and secured judgment for the full amount with costs.

Mr. Palmer did not put in any defense and the case went by default.

THE POOR WILL SUFFER.

A Corrupt Building and Loan Association.

The Globe Company, of Boston, Has Collapsed, Leaving a Large Number of People Injured.

Boston, Nov. 14.—The Globe Loan and Trust company, which was supposed to be doing business lending money to owners or purchasers of houses for homes, and allowing them to repay in monthly instalments, has suddenly collapsed.

Nelson A. Wolcott, who is said to have an office at 171 Broadway, New York, was the last of the supposed officers of the concern here. He left the city about a week ago.

T. Z. Lee, of Woonsocket, who had been put on the company's circulars as the president, repudiates the concern. A large number of people will suffer by the failure.

THE NEW ORLEANS INCIDENT.

Washington, Nov. 14.—It was stated at the state department to-day that there had been no correspondence between this government and that of Italy in regard to the New Orleans lynching affair since spring, and consequently the dispatch from Rome stating that this government had acknowled liability for the affair and would pay indemnity is incorrect.

HEAVY LOSS.

Liverpool, Nov. 14.—A most extraordinary conflagration occurred here to-day. An immense wholesale drug store belonging to Evans & Co., caught fire, and the flames spread to a cellar in which several thousand gallons of castor oil and cod liver oil were stored. The loss in castor oil and cod liver oil alone is estimated at $75,000.

THE MADERA BANK.

Baird Was Short a Hundred Thousand Dollars.

The Pacific Bank Took Hold of the Institution in Order to Protect the Creditors.

Fresno, Cal., Nov. 14.—W. F. Beard, until recently vice president and manager of the bank of Madera is short in his accounts to the amount of nearly $100,000. Baird organized the bank with John Brown, and also started the John Brown colony.

It is understood Baird used money belonging to the colonists for his private schemes and as his losses grew he issued forged notes and deposited them in place of money used.

The forging of checks and drafts followed and later, over-issuing of stock. Baird forged the signature of President Roberts of the bank.

The Pacific bank of San Francisco, assumed control of the bank in order to fully secure themselves against an overdraft by the Madera bank of about $90,000.

Baird was deposed and the Pacific bank has remained in charge since.

No arrests have been made yet, as Baird has made slight restitution with large promises. The interests of the colonists are being protected by the Pacific bank.

TWO CENTURIES OLD.

A Man Walled Up and Left to Starve.

A New Mexican Story of a Crime Which Was Committed Two Hundred Years Ago.

Hermosillo, N. M., Nov. 14.—A strange discovery has been made here, which shows that a most horrible murder has been committed at some period long past. One of the oldest places in the town is a large adobe house on the southern outskirts, which is said to be the oldest house in the territory.

This house was built by the Spaniards when they first came to this country, and has been added to and taken from until only a small part of the original remains.

This remaining portion consists of the central portion, and was left on account of the solidity of the walls.

It was determined not long ago by the owner to tear down part of this wall and change the shape of the building. The workmen had made but a few blows when they found that the apparently solid wall was hollow.

An opening was made large enough to show the interior, and it was found that the cavity contained a skeleton. An investigation showed that some man had been chained to the wall and left to die of hunger and thirst.

On the wall near the staple where the chain was attached were scratched the words, "Manuel Del Murrilos," which is supposed to have been the name of the unfortunate who was left to die. There is no possible means of determining how long the body had been there, but it must have been placed there 200 years ago.

DOWN TO BUSINESS.

The Temperance Workers of the World Down to Business

Boston, Nov. 14.—Four thousand people packed the great hall, balconies and aisles of Tremont temple, and overflowed into Park street church and Bloomfield street church, near by, when the monster world's convention of the National W. C. T. U. was called to order.

Miss Willard called the convention to order and announced the hymn of welcome, written for the occasion by Rev. Dr. Rankin, president of Howard university, Washington, D. C. Miss Willard led in the responsive reading of the crusade psalm, followed by Mary Grant Cremar, of New Jersey, in prayer for this and other lands. Miss Willard in her annual address paid a glowing tribute to the individual and collective work of the members.

FOLLOWED BALMACEDA.

Pedro Galdilleras Has Committed Suicide.

The Dictator's Minister of Agriculture Has Killed Himself in the Mountains Near Santiago.

New York, Nov. 14.—The Herald's Valparaiso dispatches state that the resignations of Ministers Irrarazabal and Martinez have not been accepted by the junta.

It is said that two of the members of the council of state stand ready to resign rather than to cause any political illfeeling.

If this action is taken it will create vacancies in the council for two conservatives. This will do away with the cause of discontent that led to the resignations of the two ministers named, and also stop Minister of Foreign Affairs Matta and other members of the cabinet from resigning.

A report has reached here that Pedro Galdilleras, late minister of agriculture under the Balmaceda regime, has shot and killed himself at his hiding place in the mountains near Santiago.

The cause of his suicide was the fear of prosecution on the part of the junta. He did not care to stand trial.

THE PECK IN DRY DOCK.

Buffalo, Nov. 14.—The propeller Susan E. Peck has arrived from Detroit with her own power. She went into dry dock, and after being cleaned inside will be surveyed. John Green, her owner, who came down on her, says her decks and iron beams were twisted and displaced by the swelling of the wheat and all must be renewed. The boilers and engine were shifted and the after bulkhead gave way.

SHIFTING WITH THE TIDES.

How John and Joe Go Up and Down.

Litigators Who Played Both Ends Against the Middle Now Find Themselves in Hot Water.

Columbus, Nov. 14.—It is interesting to watch the rise and fall of the senatorial hopes of the republican aspirants as they go up and down with the tide of announcements of their preferences from the legislators elect. Yesterday Sherman stock was above par, and to-day there is a decided advance on Foraker, consequent upon the declaration of the 13 members in Hamilton county, all of whom pronounce for the ex-governor.

Still the Sherman men insist that Joseph Benson is not in it and some of them predict that his name will not go before the caucus. Both sides, however, are equally confident, and this makes the condition of affairs all the more interesting to those who extract considerable pleasure from the heated battle now waging between factions.

The fight will become more or less interesting as it progresses and some of the ambitious statesmen who have hurriedly rushed into print in declaring their senatorial preferences is likely to be placed in peculiar and embarrassing situations.

To get down to a few real facts in the case it can be stated that certain of the legislative candidates played "boss" with the senatorial aspirants prior to their election. Some of these have placed themselves on paper and the publication of a few letters of this character would lower certain of the coming law-makers of the state materially in the estimation of their constituents.

In brief, the legislative candidates in some instances played both ends against the middle and secured aid from both Sherman and Foraker. By aid is not meant words of encouragement and stump speeches. It was something more substantial, and in consideration of receiving the sinews of war in a republican campaign these aspiring statesmen find that they are practically pledged to both Foraker and Sherman.

It is pretty well settled that this is the case with more than one of those whose preferences have already been made public, and it is suspected that a number of those still on the non-committal list are in the same boat. This condition of affairs will likely prove entertaining to the general public and very embarrassing to the individuals most deeply interested.

Besides it affords room for speculation and charges, for the reason that it is exceedingly difficult to predict the final action of the man who is virtually pledged to support two candidates for the same office.

Just when you think you've got them they are gone.

PITTSBURG TAKES THE LEAD.

Nineteen Hundred and Seven Gross Tons of Steel in Twenty-four Hours.

Pittsburg, Nov. 14.—At 6 o'clock yesterday morning the Edgar Thomson steel works at Braddock were put in operation after a rest of two hours for a 24-hour run, to test the capacity of the works. The idea was to eclipse if possible the record of the South Chicago rolling mills for 24 hours, which is 1,700 tons. The test ended at 6 o'clock this morning, at which hour 1,907 gross tons of finished steel rails had been produced. This breaks all previous records.

WANTED TO BE ARRESTED.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—The reported arrest, upon his own confession of embezzlement, of a prominent banker of Charlottenburg turns out to be correct. The banker referred to is Herr Maass. He is upon his own admission completely ruined, and he says that his liabilities are about 1,750,000 marks.

FARMERS' CONGRESS.

Sedalia, Mo., Nov. 14.—The Farmers' National congress has closed after declaring against free coinage and in favor of reciprocity.

WHOLE FAMILY DEAD.

A Horrible Affair at the Capital of Ohio.

Hours After a Building Had Burned Five Dead Bodies Were Discovered in the Ruins.

Columbus, O., Nov. 14.—A an early hour yesterday morning a row of cheap frame buildings on North High street were destroyed by fire. At 5 o'clock last evening the firemen found the remains of human beings and began a thorough investigation. Four bodies were taken out and removed to the coroner's office.

It seems an entire family was burned, and this explains why the family was not missed. The bodies found are those of a little boy of 2, a girl of 4, another girl of 6 and the father or mother. The head of the family is Charles Bethers, a laborer.

A strange feature of the affair is that the discovery was not made sooner. The fire occurred at 4 o'clock in the morning and neither the firemen nor the police knew anything of the loss of life until their attention was called to the fact by a lady friend of the burned family.

As soon as the discovery was made the police and firemen were at once notified. When the firemen reached the building and climbed into the room, they made a search and were greeted with a horrible sight. The father was on the floor, with his oldest daughter in his arms. They were both burned to a crisp.

Mrs. Bethers, the mother, was lying partially on the bed and partially on the floor. The body of the unfortunate woman was in a natural and lifelike position, and looked as if death had overtaken her in her efforts to reach the floor. Her body was perfectly nude and her back was in a horrible condition. It appeared as if all of her clothing had been burned and her flesh cooked by the flames.

The other two children were lying face downward on the bed, where they had met their death.

CHILI'S NEW CABINET.

It Will Be So Constructed As to Please All Parties.

London, Nov. 14.—A dispatch from Santiago de Chili says that the cabinet appointed by the junta have tendered their resignations. This action of the ministers is due to the fact that the liberal deputies have failed to elect councillors of state in accordance with an agreement they had previously entered upon with the ministers. A mixed cabinet will be formed to carry out nonpolitical program.

TO CARE FOR THE POOR.

Fulton County Voted An Appropriation.

Twenty Thousand Dollars Will Be Spent the Coming Summer in Building Colleges.

Wauseon, Nov. 14.—The Bee has several times of late noted visits of the secretary of the state board of charities to our county infirmary.

He stated that our poor-farm was in a most miserable condition and that none in the state equalled it in wretchedness.

The question of erecting new buildings sustained an ignominious defeat at the hands of the people three years ago, but this time it squeezed through. Less than one-third of the voters voted on the question, but about two-thirds of the votes so cast were "yea," and $20,000 will be spent the coming summer in new buildings on the "cottage plan."

VIOLATED THE SABBATH.

Pittsburg, Nov. 14.—J. K. Emmet, the actor, Manager Ed. Wilt of the Grand opera house, and 28 others were arrested on information of Gamble Weir, superintendent of police, for violation of a Sunday law by getting up a parade on Sunday last for the purpose of advertising Emmet's play.

WENT TO THE BOTTOM.

Bremen, Nov. 14.—The steamship Liebenstein, of this port, was sunk to-day in the harbor of Dover, England. Dispatches received here from that place say hopes are entertained that the Liebenstein will be raised.

FAIR COMMISSIONER.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The president has appointed Jos. H. Clendenning, of Arkansas, world's fair commissioner for Arkansas, in place of Lafayette Gregg, deceased.

THE RIGHTS OF A CITY.

It Cannot Fix the Price of Illuminating Gas.

A Corporation Cannot Make a Schedule for a Community of Which It is a Consumer.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 14.—An important decision affecting the authority of cities to control and regulate corporations enjoying street franchises, was rendered by Judge Jackson in the United States circuit court yesterday. Some time since the city council passed an ordinance reducing the price of gas from $1 to 90 cents a thousand.

The gas company went into the United States court and asked for relief in equity, claiming that the proposed reduction meant virtual confiscation of their property, which was contrary to the clause of the federal constitution preventing the taking of property without the process of law.

The city demurred on the ground that the federal court had no jurisdiction.

Judge Jackson overruled the demurrer and granted an injunction against the city. He held that the city had no right to fix the price of an article of which it was a consumer; that the action of the council would impair the validity of a contract made with the gas company in 1846, and that the city had no right to do.

MORE RIOTS IN CHINA.

Another Serious Revolt Has Taken Place.

The Rebels for a Time Had Full Sway.

Foo Choo Attacked by the Disturbers, Many Houses Burned and a Number of People Slaughtered in the Streets.

Shanghai, Nov. 14.—A most serious revolt broke out on Nov. 10th near Foo Choo, one of the treaty ports and capital of the province of Fo-Kien on the Min river. The rebels had for a time full sway and marched in force upon Tehwei, sacked the town of everything valuable, burned a number of houses to the ground, killed several people and at last advices were resting after their labors preparatory to sacking other towns.

The Chinese authorities at Foo Choo were reported to be contemplating "energetic measures" for the suppression of this revolt.

The same state of sullen silence prevails in government circles. It looks very much like a lull before the storm, diplomatic or otherwise.

FIRE IN THE MINES.

Fatal Accident Caused by the Explosion of a Lamp.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 14.—Fire started in the North Springfield coal shaft at 2 o'clock this morning as a result of the explosion of a lamp. Twenty miners were at work in the mine at the time and made a rush for the elevator. The city fire department was sent for, and by desperate work rescued four of the men and subdued the flames.

TRAIN WRECKER ARRESTED.

He Confesses His Guilt While Drunk.

He Is the Same Man Who Placed His Child on the Railroad Track in Hope That It Would be Killed.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 14.—David Cummings was arrested yesterday on a charge of train-wrecking. He confessed, while drunk, that he had removed the spikes from a rail on the Sioux City & Pacific road last January, which caused the wreck of a train on the outskirts of this city. An engineer and firemen were injured in the wreck. Cummings has also been recognized as the man who placed his child on the railroad track not long ago hoping to have it run over and killed. A brakeman rescued the child before it was hurt.

BADLY CRIPPLED.

A Large Clothing House in Chicago in Trouble.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The wholesale cloaking business, owned by Louis Adler, and conducted by him at 203 and 205 Madison street, is in the hands of the Bank of Commerce. The officers took possession on a chattel mortgage for $42,000 covering the stock and fixtures.

The mortgage was given to secure notes executed to the bank during the last few months. They are five in number; three for $7,500 and two for $10,000 each. Adler's credit has been considered first class, and although compelled to borrow considerable money of late, he has found no trouble to negotiate his paper.

The action by the Bank of Commerce in taking possession is said to have been precipitated by a demand for payment of other notes made this week by New York and Chicago banks. Fearing an injury of Adler's credit and a consequent dissipation of assets, the bank is said to have decided to secure itself.

A BATTLE WITH TRAMPS.

They Board a Train in Indiana and Attempt Robbery.

Train Men Were Equal to the Emergency and Succeeded in Bouncing the Intruders.

Danville, Ind., Nov. 14.—At a small station west of here yesterday on the Big Four road, five fierce looking tramps got on a train and took possession of the ladies' coach for a short time.

The passengers were thoroughly frightened by the tramps, who demanded money from them. A stubborn fight ensued between the trainmen and the tramps, who were finally fired off the train.

BERLIN'S BANK SENSATION.

A Renewal of the Financial Uneasiness.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—There is a renewal to-day, on a small scale, of the financial uneasiness of the commencement of this week. This feeling is caused by the fact that rumors are circulating on the bourse that a prominent banker of Charlottenburg, near this city, has been arrested on the charge, made by himself, of appropriating and pawning bonds entrusted to his care.

The banker referred to is said to have gone to a police station and frankly accused himself of the crime mentioned.

Charlottenburg is a great place for breweries, mills and factories of various descriptions and it is feared, should the story prove true, that many prominent brewers and leading manufacturers may be involved in the trouble.

JURY DISAGREED.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 14.—The jury in the case of ex-State Treasurer Woodruff reported that they were unable to agree upon a verdict. They were discharged. The jury stood six for conviction and six for acquittal.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

New York, Nov. 14.—Michael Kirscher was arrested here last night for forgeries amounting to 80,000 francs in Bucharest, Roumania. He was discharged from custody to-day, there being no extradition treaty with Roumania. He had $20,000 in his possession when he landed.

U. P. EARNINGS.

Boston, Nov. 14.—Union Pacific net earnings for September show an increase of $419,541. For the nine months to September 30 the net earnings show a decrease of $373,010.

COLLISION.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 14.—The steamer Fastnet ran into and sank the steamer Heather Bell off Charlottetown, P. E. I., yesterday in a fog. The Heather Bell's passengers were rescued by the Fastnet.

T'IS ALL TOO TRUE.

Brazil Is Tottering Under Fonseca's Rule.

Nationalist Victories in Rio Grande do Sul.

An Attack Contemplated on the Dictator,

Who Has Deposed the Governor of a State.

The Concentrated Troops of the Opposition Are Marching Toward the North With the Ultimate Object of Capturing the Seat of Government.

London, Nov. 14.—In spite of the instructions sent to the Brazilian ministers all over the world to deny the existence of any disturbance all the statements made exclusively in these dispatches in regard to the situation in Brazil are fully confirmed in every particular.

There are several provinces in revolt against the dictator. There has been a battle fought in Rio Grande do Sul, between the forces of the national party and those of the dictator. The latter has been defeated and the national party is organizing in several provinces armies which are looked upon to march, sooner or later, upon Sao Paulo and Rio Janeiro and to, using the expression of one of the national party leaders, already referred to, "drive Da Fonseca and his supporters into the sea."

The reports as to the critical situation in which the governor of Rio Grande do Sul, General Castillo, was placed are fully confirmed, and it may be added that the governor has since been deposed by the revolutionists.

The reinforcements of troops and war ships, which Da Fonseca sent to General Castillo, will reach Porto Alegro only in time, it is believed, to find that capital in the possession of the nationalists who will prepare a warm reception for them should such a course be necessary.

Dispatches received here from Brazil this morning add that the opposition continues to gain strength and that the national party is being reinforced daily by the garrisons of other towns which have declared against the dictator.

In fact this movement against one man power is developing such proportions that it is believed that there are brighter days in store for Brazil before the year expires.

The nationalists, at the rate they are said to be gaining strength, hope to restore order in Brazil within a few weeks and to establish more firmly the republican form of government which is their aim, object and desire, according to the cable advices, of all true Brazilians.

The short spasmodic movement towards the restoration of the empire which was one of the consequences of the dictator's high handed action in dissolving congress has, apparently, been drowned out by a wave of honest republicanism.

The very fact that in spite of the "reign of terror" strictness with which Da Fonseca's agents guard the telegraph and cable offices, messages, distorted and very brief, it is true, manage to reach this city and give some iden of the real situation in Brazil.

They show that the dictator's power is waning, for no good Brazilian desires the truth to be hidden from the world. Da Fonseca in using the Brazilian legations to spread news highly colored to himself, has compelled the nationalists party to take steps to let the world know something of the truth.

The older agencies having reflected only the so-called "official" versions of the trouble in Brazil has caused other and independent agencies to be employed in spreading broadcast the real trouble about the dictatorship.

It should now be added, in spite of the censorship, that there is serious trouble brewing in Rio Janeiro itself. Business there still continues, but a vigilance committee, or citizens committee, has been appointed and this really means that power there, to a great extent, has passed out of the dictator's hands.

It having been reported that the dictator has asked the government of Uruguay for permission to allow his troops to pass through Uruguayan territory on their way to Rio Grande do Sul, it is understood that the national party leaders have entered a protest against such a concession, and that they have, to all intents and purposes, notified the government of Uruguay that, should the dictator's troops be allowed the privilege asked for, Uruguay will have to reckon with the national party when peace is restored.

In other words, the national party has plainly intimated to the government of Uruguay that, in allowing Da Fonseca's troops to pass through Uruguayan territory in order to attack the forces of the national party in Rio Grande do Sul, Uruguay practically takes sides with the dictator, and that, when the latter is overthrown, the annexation of Uruguay to the republic of Brazil will be the penalty of this alleged breach of neutrality.

It is an open question as to what course Uruguay will adopt in this matter as both of them involve considerable danger to herself. If she refuses the dictator's request the latter may force his way through Uruguay; if she allows him to pass unmolested, she may have a heavy bill to foot some weeks hence.

In the meanwhile, Uruguay is placing her entire army, consisting of about 4,000 men, her armed police force, amounting to about 4,000 men, and her active civilian force, numbering about 3,500 men, under arms at various points on the frontier.

As these forces are armed with Remington rifles, and as they have 60 pieces of artillery to back them up, Uruguay could, if she so desired, make a strong protest against any violation of her territory upon the part of the dictator of Brazil.

Perhaps it would be most advisable for her to remain netral, for there is no doubt that a heavy reckoning with her will follow the victory of the nationalists, supposing them to be ultimately victorious, if she in any way lends herself to assisting the dictator to crush the national party.

CATARRH, NOT LOCAL, BUT CONSTITUTIONAL.

Dr. Dio Lewis, the eminent Boston physician, in a magazine article says: "A radical error underlies nearly all medical treatment of catarrh. It is not a disease of the man's nose; it is a disease of the man, showing itself in the nose—a local exhibition of a constitutional trouble. Therefore, he argues, the use of snuff and other local applications is wrong, and while they seem to give temporary relief, they really do more harm than good. Other leading authorities agree with Dr. Lewis. Hence, the only proper method of cure for catarrh is by taking a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, reaching every part of the body through the blood, does climb nate all impurities and make the whole man healthier. It removes the cause of the trouble and restores the diseased membrane to proper condition. That this is the practical result is proven by thousands of people who have been cured of catarrh by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York Nov. 14.—The National baseball meeting to-day postponed the free pass and deadhead receipts questions until the spring meeting which will be held in New York. Nick Young was re-elected for three years. Robinson of Cleveland, Scrandrett of Pittsburg Byrne of Brooklyn and Day of New York were elected as executive committee, and Day, Brush and Hart were appointed schedule committee. A. G. Spaulding was elected an honorary member.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Emerson's Minstrels at the Opera House Last Night.

Jefferson and Florence Next Week—Master and Man—Other Attractions Coming—Notes.

Emerson's minstrels did not draw a very large house at the Wheeler last evening, but the entertainment they gave seemed to be satisfactory to the audience. Emerson's minstrels have not the adjunct of gorgeous scenery and costumes carried by most of the modern troupes, but they give a performance in the old fashioned style. Most of the company are artists in their line, and the singing of Billy Emerson and Percey Denton was especially good.

Jefferson and Florence.

The engagement of the Jefferson-Florence company in the Rivals at the Wheeler Opera House next Wednesday evening will be one of the treats of the season and these famous people will draw a packed house. The sale of seats opens at 9 o'clock Monday morning, checks will be given out at seven.

An exchange truthfully says:

"It would be difficult to find on the comedy stage of the present day a happier conjunction of talent than that which was brought together at the Star Theater on Monday night when Joseph Jefferson, William T. Florence, and Mrs. John Drew appeared in a revival of "The Rivals." These actors have lent luster to the American stage, and now, in the early autumn of their careers, they bring to it the rounded art of dramatic experience. It was a delight to hear that rare comedian, Florence, who embodied in speech and action, the beau ideal of the Irish gentleman, Sir Lucius O'Trigger.

"Mr. Jefferson's Bob Acres has altered but little since it was last seen here. He developes all its subtleties and eccentricities, and the scenes between him and Mr. Florence were reminders of the days when comedy and not horse-play ruled the hour. No less enjoyable is the Mrs. Malaprop of Mrs. John Drew. This admirable artist does not fall into the too common error of emphasizing the mispronunciation and misapplication of words, but makes the ignorance of the deluded old lady more delightful and laughable from its very denseness.

"The performance, as a whole, is well worth seeing, more especially for the reason that, during the present generation at least, it will be impossible to bring together in one performance three comedians of the same experience, grace, and ability as those who figure in this."

Master and Man.

The attraction at the People's theater next week will be the successful drama Master and Man. It is one of the latest melodramatic successes, and was first produced in New York at Palmer's theater, two years ago, afterwards it was put on the road. Since then it has filled the theaters wherever it has been presented, and has been commended by the critics as the truest and best drama on the stage. In both story and treatment it is not like the majority of dramas, but more interesting and produced with wonderful scenic effects. Among the notable scenes is the interior of the "Iron Works" full blast. This scene is the truest and most perfect scene ever placed on the American stage. Another beautiful scene is the one showing the illuminated chapel, in winter, with the church choir singing. The cast is a strong one, headed by Dominick Murray and Walter Edwards. Altogether the play is full of pretty music, songs and genteel specialties.

Notes.

"Jane" is booked for Wheeler's next after next.

Frank Daniels takes his big comedy company to the coast next summer and will remain in California until August 1.

It has been decided that the imported costumes for Agnes Huntington's "Capt. Therese" company are "tools of trade" and need not pay duty.

Lotta will build a little theater adjoining her home, at Lake Hopatcong, and encourage promising youngsters to enter her school of acting.

Mrs. Leslie Carter has lost her appeal against the divorce decree, and Mr. Carter will therefore have charge of their son during his minority.

Charles B. Hanford has bought all the scenery and effects used by the Booth-Barrett company in Julius Caesar, and will star as Marc Antony in that play next season.

"After Dark" will close a very successful week at the People's theater this evening. Crowded houses have greeted the piece every night, and the two pugilists, Corbet and Daly, have been especial favorites.

Mme. Modjeska has been spending the past year in Europe where she has been playing remarkably successful engagements. During March and April she was at the Imperial theater, Warsaw, and notwithstanding doubled prices the seats were nearly all bought up by speculators who re-sold them at a large profit. Occasionally she played at some of the smaller towns of Russian Poland, such as Lodi and Lublau, to crowded houses.

Janauschek is once more making her annual farewell. There is one good thing about the immortal Janauschek. So long as she is on the stage she will be a representative of serious art, and will not try, like some other women of her years, to do soubrette business. She will present her new romantic drama, "The Harvest Moon." The play comes here heralded as one of the most successful novelties produced this season. Pathos and comedy are happily combined in the plot.

Charles Hoyt's latest farce comedy, "A Trip to Chinatown," is being produced at Hoyt's Madison Square theater, New York, this week, taking the place of "Jane." Mr. Hoyt is certainly one of the most versatile of our dramatic authors, and the originator of several of the cleverest skits of the age. His wit is pungent, and his dramatic ability is sufficient to string together a fair foundation for a first-class performance of the light and breezy order. His many other successes have invariably had long runs in New York. But these have always been cut off because other organizations had been booked previously at the theater in which his plays were produced. It was for this reason that Hoyt & Thomas have leased what is now Hoyt's Madison Square theater for the production of Mr. Hoyt's plays, and "A Trip to Chinatown" will be permitted as long a run as it will stand.

Among the attractions coming to the Wheeler opero house week after next is "Carmencita," the charming Spanish dancer who created such a furore in New York.

FARMERS IN CONGRESS.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Jerry Simpson announces that the farmers' alliance members will act by themselves in the next house on the speakership and other questions and if one of the alliance members goes back on them his political doom is sealed. It is not probable that Jeremiah's ferocious threat will scare anybody. As there are only eight alliance members they can flock by themselves without causing either of the old parties loss of sleep.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

MOST PEOPLE

Know only a comparatively few things thoroughly—all else is more or less uncertain.

Take your own case. What do you know about CARPETS, for instance? Are you competent to detect poor materials, or imperfect weaving, or unreliable colorings, or old-style patterns?

No.

Then will it not be wisdom on your part to make your purchases of CARPETS where all these points are taken care of in your interest, and where you are protected, not only from direct misrepresentation, but from the results of your own inexperience?

That seems plain enough.

Just two things we promise every customer. They are these:

That every salesman shall tell the whole truth about every piece of goods offered for sale; that anything which proves imperfect, through the appearance of any hidden defect subsequent to purchase, shall be made right.

The name of our firm stands behind these two guarantees.

Very likely you are thinking of purchasing one or more CARPETS shortly. If so, consider what we have said.

NEARING A CLOSE.

The Work of the General Assembly About Done.

Committees Worked Till Morning Hours—What Cannot be Done To-Day May be Left to the G. E. B.

There are indications that the convention of knights in this city may be closed to-night, with or without a prolonged evening session. The various committees sat in the different hotels until the day was dawning, some of them. All committees have now concluded their labors, and their work is being rapidly passed upon in the convention.

Yesterday afternoon the convention was in closed session some hours considering changes in the formula by which new members are instructed in the work of the different assemblies, matter in which the public is, of course, not interested. A part of the morning session was devoted to the same work, which is now concluded.

Holland's Quietus.

As mentioned in the Bee a few days ago, James J. Holland, of Florida, came to Toledo for the purpose of protesting against his expulsion from the order by the Florida state board of appeals, and the action of the general executive board in sustaining the court.

For some reason Mr. Holland did not appear before the committee which awaited his coming, the committee on appeals and grievances, but left the city. The case was, however, brought before the convention yesterday, gone over in all its details, and the action of the board and the court sustained by a unanimous vote.

The heaviest charges against Holland were that he had appropriated to himself several hundred dollars of the yellow fever fund contributed by the Knights of Labor in 1888; and that he had drawn double pay from the general assembly and the state assembly at the same time.

The Committee on Law.

The report of the committee on law has been before the convention a number of hours, and among the important matters settled has been those covered by the adoption of the following resolutions:

That any member of the order opposing or denouncing outside the assembly room any of the principles of the order shall be charged with violation of his obligation, and on being found guilty shall be expelled.

That a committee of three shall be appointed by the general master workman to consolidate and codify the constitution, the general master workman to be ex-officio chairman of the committee: the codified constitution to be approved by the general executive board, printed and submitted to all locals in the order at least two months before the next general assembly for their adoption or rejection.

It is very desirable that the constitution be codified, inasmuch as by added laws at many conventions there is some confusion, and the constitution is cumbersome, and the cost of printing it is great.

The convention has acted favorably upon applications for printing the constitution, etc., in the Italian, Swedish, Sclavonic, Bohemian, and other tongues. It is already printed in German, Polish and French, as well as English. The size of the constitution must be reduced before all these translations are made.

Notes.

The school of 49 will be continued this evening, and there will be no open meeting at Walbridge hall.

The convention will not get through today. Some delegates are now saying it will be Wednesday night.

Everybody invited to the meeting in Walbridge hall to-morrow, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. Good speakers for the order will deliver brief addresses.

The committee on transportation is: J. H. Nightingale, D. A. 111, H. B. Martin, D. A. 79, E. A. Snyder, state assembly of Ohio, and General Secretary Hayes.

The committee on law finished its report this afternoon. Other important committees are: Finance, legislation, state of the order and resolutions. It is at least two days' work if properly done.

There are four professions barred from membership in the Knights of Labor: Bankers, lawyers, those who live from the liquor traffic, and gamblers (with cards or in grain). Yesterday an effort was made to repeal restriction as to lawyers, but it was not successful.

A long and lively debate has been had on the question of whether a knight can hold public office and high office in the order without detriment to the order. The best of feeling characterizes the discussion, but there are two very decided and contrary opinions held.

Representative Tom Maguire goes to Napoleon this evening, and will deliver an address there on "The Sermon on the Mount." Before his return he will probably organize a "49 School," for locals of Napoleon, Harrison township and Liberty Center.

The delegates derive great amusement from the announcement of a city paper that "the knights bow to the federation," the facts in the case being that the knights believe they are standing upright, as honest men should, and holding out a friendly hand, as representatives of one labor organization should do to the representatives of another labor organization.

OPEN K. OF L. MEETING.

Representatives of the Order Will Talk to Outsiders Sunday Afternoon.

On Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, there will be an open meeting in Walbridge hall, which will be addressed by some of the best exponents of the order, who will discuss the purposes and work of the knights. The public generally are invited to attend.

By order of
EXECUTIVE BOARD.

CANNOT CONTROL IT.

The Fire in the Duluth Coal Docks Still Burning.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 14.—The fires on the coal docks, which have already done damage amounting to $100,000, took a fresh start yesterday morning.

The docks of the Northwester Fuel company caught fire and are blazing underneath the coal. Laborers are busy saving what coal they can. Several piles of coal twenty feet high and thirty or more in diameter have sunk, as the dock beneath was burned, and other large piles are a mass of red fire.

Two fire tugs and a city engine and fire fire apparatus of the Lake Superior Elevator company, assisted by 200 men, are fighting this fire. The loss is hard to estimate, but cannot be less than $100,000.

ROBBED A CHURCH.

A Thief Steals the Ornaments from Father Hannin's Altar.

Some sacreligious scoundrel broke into St. Patrick's Institute last night and helped himself to whatever he could lay hands on. The Institute, on Lafayette street, is being used by Father Hannin's congregation as a church, during the time that the church proper is undergoing repairs.

There was not much of value in the room, but the thief robbed the altar and stole the Morocco bound missal, one gold-plated ciborium, and a gold-plated Lunata, the whole valued at about $35.

The police are working on the case and the thief, if caught, will probably be punished severely.

EMERSON IS OUT OF SIGHT.

The Minstrel Has Left for Parts Unknown.

Stranded in a Great City the Members of His Company Are Trying to Solve a Dark Secret.

The members of the Billy Emerson minstrel show awoke this morning to find that the gigantic combination was "busted," the gay and festive William had "flew the coop" with all the cash, and Emerson's minstrels existed only in the memory of the dead past.

It is the old story—funds short, a bad streak of business, the ghost fails to walk, the manager salts the cash, rides out of town on the quiet, and the rest of the troupe get out the best way possible.

Emerson's minstrels played to very light business. "Billy," the boss of the show, settled with the house after the performance, and that is the last seen of him.

The company is billed to play in Lexington, Ky., to-night, and tickets had been made out to that point at the Union ticket office. Emerson himself ordered the tickets, but said he didn't have the cash with him, and Manager Gates left them at the Boody house, to be delivered when the cash was forthcoming.

Early this morning Capt. Dowling, of the Toledo Transfer company, attached the company's baggage on a claim of $24.90, for transferring baggage. When the boys caught on, of course there was a howl, and they swarmed about the barn like bees, each claiming individual baggage. Trunks were delivered only to those who had the required amount to liquidate the cartage.

The property of the Emerson minstrels will probably be sold under the hammer to make up the balance. The hotel bill was settled last night up to date.

The boys who have money or friends who are fixed, have left town, but those who have not—well, they will most likely lease a right-of-way out of town.

SLIGHT REDUCTION

Made in the Price of Illuminating Gas.

The Council Committee Fixes the Net Price at $1.20 Per Thousand Feet.

The council committee on gas held an important meeting last evening, and after a long discussion settled a price for illuminating gas. The committee first went into executive session and heard the report of the sub-committee which had been previously appointed to examine the books of the company. This was discussed for nearly an hour, when the committee opened the doors and the balance of the discussion was public.

The report of the sub-committee showed that last year the total earnings of the company were $126,000, of which $57,000 was used in general expenditures, $43,000 was divided in dividends among the stockholders, and $26,000 was put in the depreciation account. This last item the committee did not understand until Mr. Faben explained that the money was expended in repairs and extending mains.

These figures were discussed some time and Mr. Walbridge and Mr. Faben, the representatives of the company, were asked many questions.

The ordinance before the committee fixed the price to be paid at $1 net. Mr. Macomber moved to make this $1.10, but the amendment was lost. The proposition of the company is to charge $1.20 per thousand for use in city offices and buildings and $1.35 for private consumers, but increase the rebate to 15 cents on bills paid before the seventh of the month, thus making the net price $1.20.

Mr. Morris moved to amend the ordinance in accordance with this and his motion carried.

The ordinance provides that lights of 22 candle power shall be furnished instead of 18 as heretofore and a section was also added which allows the city natural gas trustees to furnish gas for illuminating purposes.

A number of ordinances for placing more electric lights were approved.

You can hardly realize that it is medicine, when taking Carter's Little Liver Pills; they are very small; no bad effects; all troubles from torpid liver are relieved by their use.

FELL INTO THE TRAP.

Singular Result of a Case in the U. S. Court.

Commissioner Hall Plays a Card Which Appears to Have Won the Game—The Alleged Culprit Bound Over.

Yesterday the Bee gave the particulars of a criminal case in the United States court wherein John Q. Holmes, of Columbus Grove, was charged with sending obscene matter through the mails. The letters were not sent to the party whom they were intended to injure, but dropped in the streets after having passed through the postoffice and opened.

District Attorney Brinsmade was obliged to leave the city before the case could be heard, and he directed the United States commissioner to examine the witnesses in his behalf.

There was not a particle of evidence against the accused until he took the stand himself. Mr. Hall had a neat trap prepared which when sprung operated very successfully.

In all the correspondence picked up in the manner indicated two words appeared mis-spelled. One was the name of a gentleman named Saunders and the other the word "says."

The words appear in the letters as "Sonders" and "sayes." When the writers took the stand yesterday Commissioner Hall dictated a sentence which he asked the witnesses to write, and in which the two words were used.

Holmes readily complied and spelled the two words as they appeared in the letters—Sonders and Sayes.

The commissioner promptly bound the prisoner over in the sum of $500 to appear at the next term of the United States district court.

A BLAZE ON THE WHARVES

Disastrous Fire on the River Front Last Night.

Much Lumber and Other Property Destroyed—Good Work of the Fire Laddies Under Difficulties.

A disastrous fire broke out about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the Ohio Central lumber dock, and the flames kept the firemen busy all night. The splendid work of the fire department saved the larger part of the lumber, but the loss will be heavy.

The department was delayed somewhat in getting to the scene of the blaze for the reason that the first alarm was sent in from the Ohio Central round house, up the river. The flames had been seen from up there, and they turned in the alarm. The engine and cart from No. 6 first started up the river, and when the mistake was discovered they were obliged to return and make a long circuit to get on the dock. All this made a delay of about 15 minutes, so that the fire, which started on the upper end of the dock, was under good headway, and a strong southerly wind was fanning the flames and blowing the sparks over all the lumber on the dock.

Four engines were soon on hand, and with these eight streams of water were put on the fire. The water works could not be used on account of the scene of the fire being too far from a hydrant.

There was about $150,000 worth of lumber on the dock belonging to Bills & Koch, and for a time it seemed certain that all would be destroyed. Chief Wall, however, handled the fire with a cool head, and his excellent judgement was proven by the results. He established a line, where he determined to stop the devouring flames, and instead of engaging in a futile effort to extinguish the lumber already burning, he centered the energy of his men on preventing the fire from spreading.

The flames leaped high and the heat was terrific, but the firemen bravely worked their way up close to the blaze, and there they stayed, crouched down on the dock behind shields built of boards, to keep them from being burned. Many were severely scorched, however.

The fire was held within the bounds made by the chief, though for over three hours it was impossible to tell whether the blaze could be checked or not.

The lumber destroyed was valued at about 25,000, and the lumber on the dock was insured for $75,000 in companies represented by Barker & Frost. About 300 feet of the new dock was burned to the water's edge, causing a loss of several thousand dollars to the Ohio Central Railroad company.

The only theory advanced as to the cause of the fire is that a spark from a passing locomotive ignited the dry pine lumber. The high wind carried the sparks from the fire all over East Toledo, and a number of roofs were set on fire, but were extinguished without any damage.

A constant shower of sparks was falling in Chambers' lumber yard on Front street, but the watchfulness of a bucket brigade kept them from doing any damage.

Fortunately no one about the fire was seriously hurt, although the firemen did not get off without many bruises. Great crowds congregated on the dock and interfered somewhat with the work of the firemen, and one adventurous boy in climbing over the lumber was cut of by the flames, and his only escape was by jumping into the cold water of the slip, which he promptly did and was picked up by a boatman.

OFF THE RESERVATION.

Big Foot's Band is Again Unruly.

Under Red Cloud They Have Started Toward Pine Ridge and May Cause Trouble.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 14.—The remnant of Big Foot's band of Indians, under Red Cloud, numbering sixty families, is in open revolt against the authority of the agent at Cheyenne, S. D.

The Indians have been living upon ceded lands off the reservation. The agent went up recently to allot their lands when he found that they had left and were making for the Pine Ridge agency. Indian police were sent after them but could not persuade them to return.

A big force will be sent to bring them back. It is not believed that there will be any great trouble, as the band is not strong enough to make much resistance.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

OHIO WOMAN SUFFRAGISTS

In Council in This City—Session of the Executive Committee.

President C. M. Guerhard, of Massillon, called to order the November meeting of the executive committee of the Ohio Woman Suffrage association at 8 o'clock last evening, at 916 Broadway.

The business which received attention related to the employment of a capable person to represent the political interests of women before the legislature the coming winter. Mrs. Hagyard, of Indiana; Mrs. Seymour Howell, of New York, and others were mentioned, but it was the concensus of opinion that Ohio women could best do the work, and the president was instructed to secure Mrs. Sarah Schrader, of Chillicothe, to be assisted by the congressional view presidents and other officers of the state association.

The president presented a draft of the school suffrage bill, which a prominent Ohio jurist pronounced constitutional. Methods of work to secure school suffrage were discussed at length. Mrs. Louisa Southworth, of Cleveland, thought securing signatures to school suffrage petitions was useless work, as the Ohio enrollment has now reached over 22,000 signatures of responsible persons who believe women should vote on equal terms with men.

Miss Folger, of Massillon, and Mrs. Fray, of Toledo, stated that great numbers of men and women are eager to sign petitions for school suffrage who are not prepared to ask the entire franchise, and it was agreed to obtain signatures to both petitions.

Letters relating to the work of the committee were read from Mrs. Coit, Columbus; Mrs. Casement, Painesville; Dr. Howells, Hartwell; Mrs. Taylor Upton, Warren; Prof. Merrill, Akron, and Emily Robinson, Salem, who could not be present. The latter lady recommended permanent headquarters for the association, saying many historic relics could be gathered in such a building. She had the chair long occupied by Fannie Wright D. Arismont, which she would like to present.

Methods of legislative work were further discussed until the meeting adjourned to 9 o'clock this morning. The ladies taking part in the proceedings were Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Cleveland; Mrs. Martha Elwell, Willoughby; Mrs. McCullough Everhard, Massillon; Mrs. E. Folger, Massillon; Miss Kingsbury, Defiance; Mrs. Claypole, Akron; Mrs. R. L. Segur and Mrs. E. S. Fray, Toledo.

There was a full meeting from 9 o'clock until 12 this morning of the woman's suffrage executive committee at Mrs. Rosa L. Segur's. A press committee was appointed to attend to all the woman's suffrage publications in the state of Ohio, said committee being appointed by the president. Further attention was given to the mid-year convention and it was concluded that it would not take place until after school suffrage had been disposed of.

State delegates were appointed to attend the national convention at Washington. The meeting adjourned with a vote of thanks tendered to Mrs. Segur for entertainment.

ECLIPSE OF THE MOON.

An Interesting Astronomical Event to Occur To-Morrow Evening.

A total eclipse of the moon will occur tomorrow evening, which will be visible from all parts of the United States. This eclipse will be most interesting, as it is the only one of the kind since 1874 and will not occur again until 1900. The eclipse will begin at 5:08 p. m. and end at 8:36 p. m. The total eclipse actually begins at 6:10 o'clock and ends at 7:34 o'clock. The particular points of interest will be the curious changes of color which the surface of the moon undergoes as it becomes involved in the shadow of the earth.

The different appearances of the moon when totally eclipsed depend upon the relative amount and distribution of the vapor in the earth's atmosphere and cannot be determined beforehand by calculation. Opera glasses will be of great assistance in viewing the eclipse, though it can be seen with the naked eye.

LATE ROSES.

The flowers grew fair and fine under the care of the old florist, Donald McDonald. His hot-house was a marvel, as, by the way, were his open beds, his little nursey—all that he kept an eye over. No window box need lack the choice of its owner, nor need any belle betake her to a ball without the flower she longed for, while Donald McDonald's white sign with its long black letters hung between the two gate posts of his garden.

No one knew much about him. He had come to the town and taken the place from an old man who had left it, to go back to his native Scotland—a fellow countryman, and, no doubt, an old friend; but he never spoke of this, or, indeed, of anything else. It was said of him that he never spoke to any one. This was not quite true. There were occasions on which a "Yes" or a "No," a grunt or an "Ah!" became necessary; more no one could get out of him.

He lived alone in his house, which a woman came to tidy once a week; and it was a pretty house, those said, who had peeped into it, and well furnished; and in its little parlor stood a low sewing-chair near a work-basket on a small stand, as if some woman were expected to use it; and over the mantel hung a good portrait of a beautiful young woman. And so the legend gained belief amongst those who knew the florist, that he had lost a young wife and that her death had preyed upon him greatly. And for this reason—the world at large being much more sympathetic and kindly than we usually give it credit for being—folks pardoned Donald McDonald for his oddities and praised him for his skill in his calling.

Certainly he was not without friends somewhere, for he was always writing letters and receiving letters from abroad, with important-looking seals upon them. Only why should he be so savage with the children if one of them but thrust a dimpled hand through the palings for a blade of grass or a daisy, or caught at a fruit-blossom that the long branch put within reach? That, mothers said, was his worst trait.

But it had come to be that the children passed the florist's garden on the other side of the way and never dreamed of peeping in at the door of the hot-house. But Donald was not parsimonious, for every Sunday he carried with his own hands, a basket of flowers to the church door and handed it without a word to the sexton, who placed them where all could see and admire. And also, if any poor woman in his neighborhood were ill, one too poor to dream of flowers, rare roses were handed in at the door, and they all knew they came from Donald McDonald. Therefore, even despite his surliness to the little children, and his silent ways, they all believed the florist to be a good man at heart.

What would they have thought of him could they have seen him sometimes in his own home, when the shutters were closed and the curtains drawn, his men gone home for the night, and no eye upon him save that, perhaps, some of those good angels who watch and weep unseen with poor humanity? What would they have thought had they seen him kneel before that fragile little sewing chair, his head upon its cushions, kissing them, weeping, sobbing, crying upon a woman's name at intervals, or gathering from the basket a little lock that a doll might have worn, and pressing it to his heart and folding it reverently as a Catholic might the relic of a saint, ere he replaced it, or standing before the lovely portrait of a woman that hung upon his wall, reaching his arms toward it and crying: "Come back to me, Jennie, my love, come back and forgive me!" Then they would have known, indeed, that the story of his life was a tragic one.

Ten years before he had had a lovely wife—that was her portrait upon the wall. She had been nearly young enough to be his daughter, but she loved him fondly, and they were very happy for a while. It was in Scotland that he married her, and there they lived amongst his flowers, happy as the day was long, until, one sunny afternoon, a handsome young Highland laird rode that way to buy roses. He had an eye for a pretty face, and Jennie was but a girl as she blushed to be admired. Afterward Donald could not remember which of the "trifles light as air," which are the food of jealousy, awakened his. A madness seized him. He believed her false; he called her a foul name; he accused her coarsely. That night, when he returned to his home, he found her gone; a letter lay upon the table; it read thus:

"I am innocent in word and deed; I have loved you only, nor has any man had cause to believe otherwise, but you have insulted me so that I can never look you in the face again. Good-bye forever. JENNIE."

There was not wanting those who believed that the elderly florist's wife had gone away with the handsome young Highlander; but Donald knew better. Since that day, despite the fact that the hut she had worn had been found floating in a loch near by, he had never ceased to search for her. He had written to the American consuls in foreign countries—the large correspondence which surprised his neighbors was all concerning his lost wife. A report that she had been seen in America had brought him here. Here, where the old story was not known, he made a home for her, believing then that she might come to dwell in it. There stood her chair, her unfinished needlework, there hung her portrait; but so many years had passed without any tidings from her—so many years—despair had seized Donald's soul and made him bitter to all mankind.

This year he was more miserable than ever. He saw the marks of age growing greater in his face; he thought that somewhere on earth his son or daughter might be begging bread, for Jennie was not one of your clever women, but as clinging as any little tender vine in all his garden. He was well-to-do; he had hoarded for her sake. How he had prayed for forgiveness, yet God would not hear him. He thought himself accursed, and told himself that he was lost soul and body, unless he might atone for his great sin. In this mood he made no answer to the "good days" of his men when they were about to trudge homeward, and was more ready than ever to believe that in spite of all his care, the neighbor's children robbed his flower borders.

In the darkness he walked alone down the long, broad paths of his rose garden.

The latest roses only remained, but they were beauties. Their fragrance came to him tenderly. He sat down upon a block of stone, and the soft grass at his feet and the sweet stars above helped to soothe him.

"If she is dead, she will know of my remorse," he sighed, his monomania taking a more gentle turn, for he never could forget it for a moment. "Now if she could but come to me a spirit, and could stand amongst the roses and smile on me, then I could wait for death in peace."

Donald McDonald had in his veins the blood of ancestors who were endowed with second sight. Nothing seemed impossible to him. He stared before him, waiting for a sign, and saw a slender hand holding a rose—a hand like hers—over the top of a certain old bush. It arose between him and the starlight. His blood curdled, his heart beat so fast that it shook his frame. Another rose was in the slender hand, now another. He heard a sigh. "Was she about to speak to him?" he asked himself. But then came a cough of the earth earthy—and, springing to his feet, Donald saw that what he had taken for the hand of a spirit, materialized in answer to prayer, was that of a boy who was stealing his roses, his left elbow propped upon the fence, with his left hand resceiving the flowers which he broke from the stems with the other.

The revulsion of feeling was too great. For an instant he grew ferocious and seized the little brown wrist in a grip that must have given plan.

"You young thief!" he roared.

The boy struggled, but held the flowers fast.

"I'll see who you are; I knew some one was robbing me," said Donald, dragging him toward the house.

Once where the lamplight fell on the face of the boy he saw that the lad was a stranger. He saw, too, that he was clad in rags and looked far from well nourished, but he was beautiful, with the dark, soft beauty the sandy-haired Scotchman loved best, and Donald's fury faded before the look in the brown eyes.

"There, you may go," he said.

The boy felt his wrist released, and took a firmer grasp upon his roses.

"Thank you," he said. "May I keep the flowers?"

"If stolen goods give you joy," said Donald.

"I want them for a sick woman," said the boy. "They will give her pleasure. She will not know how I got them."

"A sick person?" said Donald. "Why did you not say they were for a sick woman? Here!"

He went out into his garden again, and clipped and bound until a great, glowing, fragrant bunch was in his hand.

"There," said he, come back to-morrow night. Sick—well, that is different."

"Mother will be so glad," said the boy. "God bless you."

That night Donald slept happily for the first time in years.

"It's the blessing," he said to himself. The next night he waited long for the boy. At last he saw him running toward him.

"I had an errand to do for a gentleman," he explained. "And we live far across the bridge. The flowers kept mother company all day. You don't know what you did for her."

This time some dainty fruit went with the flowers, and Donald laid his hand on the boy's head ere they parted, with a come to-morrow."

He did.

"I'll walk with you a bit," Donald said this time as the boy turned away; and keeping by his side, they crossed the bridge and came to the poor part of the town, where miserable little shops and houses crowded together. No gardens there; no patch of sward; nothing but the sordid surroundings of those who labor for mere bread, and have no time for pretty fancies.

"Is this where you live?" asked Donald.

"Yes, though my mother is fit for a palace," said the boy.

He had paused at a low door. A woman stood beside it, her arms folded in her apron.

"I'm glad you've come," she said. "My children want me. Your mother is worse. She is talking wild."

She left them, hurrying up the street and vanishing in a dingy alley-way.

The boy, with a cry of grief, rushed into the house. Donald followed. A candle flared upon the chimney-piece. On a miserable bed lay a woman, muttering to herself.

"Mother I have come," said the boy. "Here are more flowers."

The thin hands, so like his own, clutched them.

"Flowers! More flowers!" she said. "Late roses! Where is Donald? Donald's garden used to be full of them. It was Eden—the garden of Eden! But he turned me out, and I was true—ture to him—"

"Jennie! Oh, my God! It is my Jennie!" cried Donald McDonald, and sprang forward, and, kneeling by the bedside, lifted the wasted form in his arms.

"Jennie! My own true wife!" he sobbed. "Jennie! It is Donald! Forgive me, Jennie! I have found you at last! God is merciful!"

Time glided on; autumn departed; winter snows were followed by spring buds and summer blossoms; artemisias were blooming in the florist's beds. Among them he walked, smiling, holding the little brown hand of his boy in his own. And within the parlor, near the window, swinging to and fro in the long-treasured sewing-chair, sat Donald McDonald's wife Jennie.

She was finishing the little embroidered robe she had found in her basket, and she wore the last late roses in her bosom.—Mary Kyle Dallas, in New York Ledger.

The Federation of Labor Has No Use For the Knights.

Interviews with several members of the Central Labor Union go to show that the Federation of Labor will not appreciate to any great extent the proposition advanced by the General Assembly yesterday.

President Booth of the C. L. U., says the Federation outnumbers the K. of L. three to one and can hoe its own row.

It appears to be the same old story with organized labor. The old adage is reversed and runs thus "Divided we stand, united we fall." The Knights will live and thrive just the same.

We presume when Mr. Griffin called Brother Flickinger a "hound" he had in mind all the republican representatives who intend voting for Sherman.

The republicans who will do the voting in the senatorial caucus are talking less than the republicans who think they boss the situation.

Somebody is fabricating at a fearful rate. The Sherman men are confident of success and the Foraker crowd claim their favorite will have two to one in the senatorial caucus.

The Fremont Journal has a lengthy editorial in this week's issue in favor of the re-election of Senator Sherman. Editor Keeler regards the pushing of Foraker as very unwise.

There will be no side issues in the republican caucus. The Foster following will keep hands off and the Brice election will not be a disturbing element. The Icicle and the Fire Alarm will have a jolly picnic of their own, and it will be a freeze-out or a conflagration.

Senator Sherman strikes straight from the shoulder in this fight and commands the admiration of everybody. He displays the family trait that made Tecumseh strong in battle. The senator is no spring chicken, as the Foraker crowd have discovered.

Toledo has abundant reason to be proud of its fire department. It is not nearly so large as it should be, but under Chief Wall's intelligent direction it accomplishes wonders. The work at the lumber yard fire yesterday was well planned and heroically carried out.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says Ohio democratic newspapers are abusing Gov. Campbell for his defeat. This is news to the Ohio democratic papers. They are loud in praise of their gallant leader. A better campaigner never led our forces in this state.

The rantankerous republicans are now talking of ousting Lieutenant-Governor Marquis from the office to which the people elected him, and seating Pretender Lampson on the marble platform a whole week. Just like the revolutionists, and it will not be at surprising if they do it.

It was comparatively easy for Mr. Griffin to boss Mr. Messer, as the latter was an easy-going, unambitious sort of a fellow, but just wait until Flickinger and Heller get well warmed in their seats, then the fun will begin whenever Mr. Griffin undertakes to swell all over Lucas county.

The Toledo Bee crawling out from under the wreckage of the late cyclone takes up the same old song: "The tariff is a tax."—Defiance Express.

And, like every other honest newspaper, will continue telling the people the tariff is a tax until they knock the restrictive tax into smithereens.

The business men of Toledo will find in Representative Flickinger an intelligent and capable person to attend to the growing wants of this progressive city. He will work openly and manfully for Toledo. That is one consolation we find in the situation, even if Mr. Flickinger is a republican.

We got licked last week but are not yet willing to give up the fight.—Celina Standard.

That is the spirit of democracy in Ohio. That's the kind of stuff Buckeye democrats are made of. They "get licked" but they never give up the fight. No other party could stand the drubbing the democrats have received and live. Our party lives, lives in hope of better results; lives in confidence that its principles will prevail, and that some day even Ohio will be a reliable democratic state.

The more the administration meddles with the Ohio senatorship the fewer delegates will Mr. Harrison get from Ohio to the national convention next year.—Toledo Blade.

Since when did the Toledo Blade acquire the power to dictate who should be delegates from Ohio to the national convention? Some of the Blade editorial writers need "setting down on" hard.—Tiffin Tribune.

Thus does the brainy Locke, of the Tiffin Tribune, a brother of the lamented David R., dress down the ghost of the hate which the present Blade establishment inherited.

This choice bit is reproduced from the Defiance Express to illustrate the harmony that prevails in the republican ranks in northwestern Ohio:

Geo. P. Waldorf, internal revenue collector of this district, farmed out the federal patronage of the Fifth congressional district in 1889. He now rushes into print in the Cleveland Leader to try to explain that he has a job of voting the republican legislative members-elect from northwestern Ohio for Sherman. The republican party has no use for bosses and will repudiate Waldorf quick if he attempts to use his Allen county methods from Toledo headquarters.

As a farmer Mr. Waldorf is a political success and will probably continue to harvest good crops even if the Defiance brother doesn't like his methods of sub-soiling.

In United States circuit court in Cleveland yesterday Judge Jackson delivered an opinion which must have a serious effect upon the corporation rights of all the municipalities in the state. The city council, in the exercise of its supposed prerogative, fixed the price which the gas company in Cleveland should charge its consumers. The company objected to the price and appealed to the United States court, claiming the ordinance price to be ruinously low and virtually effecting the confiscation of the company's property. The city demurred, denying the jurisdiction of the federal courts. Judge Jackson overruled the demurrer, and granted an injunction against the city. In his opinion he declared as a principle of law that the city had no right to fix the price of an article of which it was a consumer. This is a radical interpretation of the rights of a municipality and extends to the supply of illuminating gas, natural gas, electric light and water, where the business is owned by private capital. Applied to the city of Toledo the council has no power to fix the price of illuminating gas and electric lights, and it will have no voice in the natural gas business if it again becomes a consumer of private gas. This is a new ruling, which by some city will surely be taken to the supreme court. If the principle shall be sustained the gas company and the electric light companies in Cincinnati will have a great bonanza. The opinion is startling in scope and intent.

The population of Ohio according to a late census bulletin is 3,672,316, a gain of 474,254 or 14.83 per cent. over the figures of 1880. The per cent. increase in the city of Toledo is 62.42. Cincinnati's increase is 16.37; Cleveland's 63.20; Columbus' 70.68; Youngstown, 115.23; Canton, 113.65; Findlay, 300.45; Lima, 111.19; Marion, 113.57. Of these cities, Cleveland shows the largest numerical increase in urban population: 101,207; the census of '80 giving 160,147 and of '90, 261,353. In the summary of counties, Lucas is put down with an increase of 34,919 in number of which 31,207 are credited to Toledo, leaving a little more than 4,000 increase for the remainder of the county in the last ten years. This same discrepancy in greater or less degree is noticed in comparing gains within the cities and villages with those of the remainder of the counties outside of them, adding testimony to what is shown in the detailed figures of other states, namely: that the growth of cities throughout the country is out of all proportion to the increase of population in the farming districts. What are the causes of this or whether or not it is to be deprecated are questions for debate.

Basing opinions upon reasonably accurate judgment, according to the school census, Toledo has never felt satisfied that the figures put down for it were even approximately correct; so much so, the estimates of the last census are rarely taken into honest calculation. It is a matter to be greatly regretted that the census which it was intended should be so complete and thorough and for which the people have paid so large a sum should be received with so little confidence.

Inasmuch as the republicans welcomed George William Curtis back into full fellowship because he opposed Flower, and declared for Fassett, once more calling him the profound scholar and eminent statesman, it may be interesting to note his editorial opinion of the autumn elections. Of course the election of Mr. Flower is credited chiefly to the power of Tammany, but the striking fact is noted of the diminution of the republican vote in the state outside of New York city and the decrease of the democrat vote in the city. Whether it be that the rural voters are becoming tariff reformers or whether it be that voters were seized with apathy and remained at home, "either is a bad omen for the republican party." The third reason assigned is the one that has weight with the Harper's Weekly editor: that "Plattism is as bad as Tammany."

Speaking for the significance of the state election as bearing on the chances for '92: "the general result in the state is favorable to democratic hopes." Of Massachusetts: "the excellency of Gov. Russell's administration could not be assailed," and the tradition that everything bad was in the democrat party "which has sustained the republican party in that state through all the exposures of its corruption and the ignoble leadership of its later day elsewhere," can no longer be depended upon. In Ohio, "the election of McKinley is not clearly a verdict for protection." He believes the silver issue was involved in the result. Summing up, generally, the review concludes:

The result in the country offers no reason to doubt that tariff reform will be the chief issue in the presidential campaign; nor have the autumn elections left any democrat so prominent that he is likely to contest with Mr. Cleveland the party nomination upon that issue.

The whirligig of Ohio politics brings a new legislature to bless or curse the commonwealth. Better work than the average is hardly to be expected from its deliberations, because too many men go to Columbus thoroughly imbued with the idea that they must keep politics in advance of everything else. This is a serious mistake. Really, there is very little politics in a winter's legislative work that requires attention, and that little can soon be accomplished and all parties can quickly get down to the solid business of the session.

There is one subject which ought to be given careful, unprejudiced and intelligent consideration. The public institutions of Ohio ought to be conducted on the principle of strict non-partisanship. Ohio should keep pace with the best in the land, and the best is non-partisan. Especially should the asylums for the insane, the blind, the deaf and dumb, and the imbecile, and the correctory institutions, be entirely without the pale of politics. They have been the bone of contention too long. The inmates of these institutions have rights, and their friends on the outside have rights which even politicians should respect. In this suggested field is grand opportunity for the coming legislature to distinguish itself. Some influential member will have the honor, if he so elects, of being a pioneer in the advocacy of a policy that will inure to the benefit of the state and become a blessing to society. Let humanity advance to the fore, and let politics take a rest. Ex-Governor Foster's first administration made a fair beginning, by providing a minority political representation on all the boards. Now is the time to advance another step and make the public institutions strictly non-partisan. Major McKinley as governor of Ohio has a spendid chance to outline a policy that will make his administration strong, and strong for the right.

THE USUAL ROUTINE.

There is a regular routine for protected industries in this country. Those who would engage in a business if they were assured of government aid to help them to sure success in the way of a levy on other businesses in the country in their behalf, beseige the committee rooms of the law-making body for their grant. Successful in this, they post themselves on the contract labor system, or rather the method of getting old-world "pauper labor" and evading the law against it. Then they blow the trumpet for protection and how their industry will bring prosperity to the whole country and insure good wages for American workingmen. Fairly under way, the formation of "an association" is announced—"to bring about closer relations between employer and employe," according to the bills. Presently a full-blown trust is organized and in working order. With the prohibitive tariff to protect, the machinery is ready to "control output, regulate supply," etc., and consumers are at their mercy. If nothing unusual happens, they consider themselves on the highway to millionairedom—the most direct road. Mansions of ease for themselves and their families loom up in the near distance, tours of the world with gold to scatter as they go, "monuments" to their "thrift and industry" to be built in conspicuous places, eulogies to be published on their "great financial ability and their worth in community."

The tin industry has reached the trust formation stage of the proceeding. Ex-Congressman Niedringhaus, he of Welsh contract labor notoriety, is authority for the published statement that next month representatives of twenty-two tin-plate and iron mills will meet in convention in St. Louis for the purpose of "forming an association to bring about closer relations," etc. The machinery is in fine order for adjustment; the duty on black steel plates is one and one-tenth cents per pound; on the samo plates dipped in tin two and two-tenths cents per pound. The difference, one and one-fourth cents, is what we pay for the dipping, which work John Sherman says can be done by "any boy or girl in Montgomery county." This association (trust) as remarked, is to be formed in the interest of labor, same as all the others are, and yet labor must organize and fight for even standing room in sight of the platform. The steel trust which has just reduced wages all the way from ten to thirty per cent. throughout the Pennsylvania region was organized for the same purpose! The pottery factory in Trenton, New Jersey, united with others in one of these amiable associations has made a recent cut of twenty-two per cent. on a class of wage-earners; a hat factory in Massachusetts has reduced wages twenty-five per cent.

And so the list could be extended. Gov. Campbell could not find in any crowd of tin-badge wearers, or anywhere else, a single man whose wages had been advanced.

Let the tin trust in the name of protection to workingmen go bowling along its way and watch out for the dust it kicks up and notice where that dust settles.

THE TAX SPOTTING SHARKS.

The men who are employed by Lucas county to spot citizens who have money are doing a far greater injury than good to this community. They have driven more than a million dollars from Toledo, and it is going away every day. The spotters are now trying to make the banks divulge the amount of individual deposits in particular cases. Of course they are refused access to the books, but they succeed in making business men timid, and it is said that within two weeks over five hundred thousand dollars have been withdrawn from circulation. This is a positive injury to the commercial and manufacturing interests of Toledo. As a rule our money owners are as honest in their tax returns as any other class of people, and they should not be hounded by outsiders whose only object is to get the twenty-five per cent. fees which the county officials allow them. The whole scheme as practiced is a fraud and causes a positive loss to the city and county. Many of our citizens, notably vessel owners, are compelled by this scheme of espionage to list their property in adjoining states where the tax laws are more favorable. This subject is commended to the careful consideration of our people. The auditor, treasurer and commissioners should withdraw the contract from the sharks in the interest of fair play, more capital for Toledo, and increased business facilities.

Chapter on Republican Harmony.

Mr. Sherman is not required in his candidacy for the senate to take upon his shoulders the political errors, misfits, humps and deformities of others in the state who have stumbled into holes through their own lack of principle and sound judgment. He is not likely to pool his interests as a candidate for re-election with the disabilities of those who have been more conspicuous as marplots than sensible and useful in the ways of constructive statesmanship. The attempt to average Mr. Sherman to a lower level might be of service to some who are assailing him, but it will not succeed. He stands on his record as a public man. The fact that it is so high is the real reason why some are trying to pull it down by entangling side issues, or by any other device that will serve their purpose.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Protection to American Labor.

The portrait of ex-Speaker Reed, which is to beautify the halls of congress, has been painted in London. Good American money appropriated from the depleted United States treasury, will have to pay for it. This being the case, Mr. Reed should have used his influence to throw the money to some American artist. If there is no American artist capable of painting the ex-speaker's picture, it might have been deferred until such time as this country has produced one. There was no great hurry for the picture.—New York Advertiser.

Rebellion in Virginia.

Governor McKinney, of Virginia, has a bright 3-year-old daughter. Her name is Frances. She was unruly at dinner. Her father warned her that if she did not become more circumspect he would send her away. The offence was repeated and she was ordered to leave the table. She toddled off, and as she reached the door she turned around, looking firmly at the governor and the assembled company, and, waving her hand defiantly, said: "Hurrah for Mahone!"—Courier-Journal.

Must Show Its Ears.

The Commercial Gazette is still insisting that Mr. Brice shall be "bounced," and gives John Sherman to understand that his only chance of going back to the senate is to get Brice "bounced," in which event he can have the latter's seat. It is safe to say that John Sherman will attempt no such foolishness. The Times-Star, which is very close to him, says he will not. But, of course, the C. G. has to show its ears occasionally.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Now, Who's the Hungry Army?

In Franklin county alone there are 973 republicans who have already expressed their desire for positions under the new republican administration. And yet the republicans would have you believe that democrats are the only people in the world that hunger and thirst after office.—Marietta Times.

The Jingo Policy and the Compass.

The dissension with Great Britain over the seal fisheries is to be submitted to arbitration. It would seem that the Blaine vigorous foreign policy loses in vigor when it faces in any direction except due south.—Chicago Times.

Iowa and Prohibition.

Iowa is a prohibition state, as is clearly evidenced by the fact that out of the total of 420,214 votes cast there for governor this month 962 of them were for the prohibitionist candidate.—Chicago Mail.

The N. F. Congress a Unit.

The national farmers' congress has shown that it can be a unit on one question. Without a dissenting vote the congress has declared its disapproval of the Texas cattle fever.—Kansas City Star.

Probably True.

Bluff will not elect the senator. It will take votes to do that, and there are strong indications that Sherman has the necessary supply of the article.—Fostoria Review.

FORAKER'S FATHER.

FIRST TASTE OF WINTER.

Another Storm Will Sweep Across the Land,

And Then the Icy Blasts Will Be Upon Us.

The Planet Mars and Her Moons—The Science of Planetology As Told in An Interesting Way By Prof. Foster.

Copyrighted, 1891, by W. T. Foster.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 14.—We have passed the beauties of another "Indian summer" and we have passed the season of the West India hurricanes. The latter cause the former and while we have been enjoying the beautiful days, now past, the West Indies, the Bermudas, our Atlantic coast and the paths of the great steamers between Europe and America have been overwhelmed by what the hydrographic office of the navy department declares to have been the greatest and most disastrous storms ever recorded for October. While they have suffered we have seen our May, but the tables have turned and the time for our battles with its elements draws uncomfortably near.

Forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from the 11th to 15th were given in my last letter and the next will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 17th, cross the central valley from 18th to 20th and reach the Atlantic coast about the 21st.

November has no light storms on its roll of weather disturbances this year and this one will affect the whole continent, its center running further south than the average for the past month. Winter weather will follow it with snows in many pinces but not excessive.

This storm will be of about even force in its entire journey across the continent and will not run to sudden extremes but will be a general widespread disturbance, with marked features but not so severe as the storm to follow it. I use the word "storm" to denote a weather disturbance and not to mean a destructive storm. When I expect a tornado, blizzard or hurricane I will say so in terms that cannot be misconstrued.

The best days for outdoor work will be about the 14th and 20th west of Denver, 15th and 22d in the great central valleys and 17th and 23d in the eastern states.

The Planet Mars.

Astronomers are generally agreed that the two moons of Mars came to that planet within a few years past and this is a very strong argument in favor of the holds that the earth was a molten mass and when its crust had formed its cooling interior shrank away from this outer crust which finally broke up and coming together formed our moon. This idea contains the gist of the whole nebular theory of creation.

The electrical theory holds that bodies of matter are growing in all parts of chaotic outer space by accumulations and condensations of electric ether, now as has been the case in all the past and that these bodies come to our solar system as comets, occasionally one of them being caught by the magnetic influences of our solar system, becoming a planet, a moon or an asteroid. There are about 300 of these small planets moving around the sun in orbits between Mars and Jupiter identical with these small planets called asteroids and that they came from the asteroidal belt within ten years past.

The moons of Mars are very small, said to be not more than fifty miles in diameter and are not easily seen except when Mars is at perihelion—nearest point to the sun—and the earth at the same time between Mars and the sun and this occurs once in about nine years. These moons were discovered at the last of these conjunctions and therefore came to Mars between the last two such conjunctions.

Unquestionably Mars received her moons from outer space and not by the breaking up of an outer crust formed by cooling and this is not only evidence, it is positive proof, that the earth received its moon in the same manner. The indisputable facts connected with the moons of Mars destroy the nebular theory for if these moons came to that planet from outer space then it cannot be successfully denied that the earth came to the sun in the same manner and in these two little moons of our near neighbor, we have incontrovertible evidence in favor of the theory that the sun, earth, planets and moons slowly grow in outer space and are caught by our solar system as it moves constantly into new space never before occupied by it.

Another eveidence is that Jupiter in recent years caught a comet and held it revolving around it like one of its moons for six months, and finally, when it did break away, changing its orbit so that it revolves around the sun in about seven years instead of 27 years as before. This has occurred twice with the same comet, and it will probably become the fifth moon of Jupiter.

One of the moons of Mars revolves around that planet in less time than it requires for Mars to revolve on its axis. If this was the case with our moon it would rise in the west and set in the east. This appears to refute the theory that the elements surrounding the sun, earth and planets, revolving with them, cause the planets and moons to revolve around their primaries, for these elements move slower than the revolution of the bodies, while this moon of Mars moves faster than the planet revolves, causing that moon to rise in the west and set in the east relative to that planet.

But when this moon came to Mars it necessarily moved with the velocity of a comet, and its momentum would, for a time, carry it around its primary with great speed. Astronomers say that our moon is losing time, decreasing in velocity, and they fairly prove this by the dates of ancient eclipses, and no doubt this rapidly moving moon of Mars will lose velocity till it is in accord with the elements that revolve around that planet.

Schiaparelli, the noted Italian astronomer, says that within a few years past wonderful changes have taken place in the physical geography of Mars. The seas have changed their beds, the continents have broken up, some of them disappeared, and great rivers, or arms of the seas, occupy new channels. Such would be the natural consequence of acquiring a moon, and this may suggest an explanation of the great catastrophies that are spoken of in the Bible and the legends that have come down from prehistoric times through all the races of man.

Either the acquisition of a new planet like Mercury, or of a moon, or the striking of the earth by a comet would cause events similar to the flood, the rising and sinking of the seas, or the great changes that mark the geological ages of the earth and the changes of animal life that are so distinctly marked by the geological epochs of the earth.

The newly acquired moons of Mars marks an epoch in the evolution of astronomy and is probably a catastrophe on that planet such as must have occurred on the earth causing the great epochs of its growth, which probably are identical with the six periods of creation spoken of in our Bible Genesis.

Astronomers have but little to say about these newly acquired moons of Mars for they cannot account for them by the old theories. They see their long and beautiful astronomical dissertations falling into disrepute because they were builded on the sands of the Nebular theory and they prefer to see their rounded sentences fade silently away to nothingness. W. T. FOSTER.

A DESERTER.

James Roberts Again in the Clutches of the Law.

James Roberts, the man arrested some time ago for the Columbus Grove robbery and murder, but afterwards discharged, is again in trouble, this time with the United States government. Yesterday a constable from Logan county named John M. Hemphill arrived in the city with a warrant for Roberts, charging him with being a deserter from the United States army. Patrolman Howard went with the constable and arrested Roberts, and he was taken to Columbus this morning.

SPANKS THE BAD BOYS.

Senator Sherman Talks on Local Affairs.

He Remembers Much That is Interesting to Toledo People and Feels Confident of His Re-Election.

A Mansfield special to the Toledo Commercial quotes Senator Sherman on the present political squabble and the opposition of the Blade to his re election.

The conversation opened with the following question by the reporter:

"Senator, much has been written on the subject of the Blade's hostility to you. Could you tell me the reason?"

"No, I could not," he replied. "It began when Mr. Locke was editing the Blade, and I understand has been transmitted to the children. Just why Mr. Locke was opposed to me I cannot guess."

"It has been stated that Mr. Locke was at one time applicant for the postoffice at Toledo, and that you refused to recommend his appointment. Is that true?"

"I do not remember that he was ever a candidate for that office, and do not think that he was."

"Perhaps it was for some other postoffice before he lived in Toledo."

"That I cannot say. There was a time when nobody could have recommended him, but he got over that trouble in later years."

The senator bowed his head in a reflective mood for a moment, and then, straightening up, said:

"I can call to mind now only one reason why Mr. Locke should have antagonized me. When the civil war broke out, I undertook to raise a regiment in this vicinity. D. R. Locke was then editing a paper in Bucyrus, and he tried to raise a company for the regiment.

"Crawford county was so intensely democratic that he had hard sledding, and before he secured his quota Gen. Finley succeeded in raising a company and filled the only gap in the regiment. I have understood that Locke was sorely disappointed, and took the matter very much to heart, although there was no reason why he should have blamed me. He was a young man struggling to run a newspaper when I was a law student, and although I was poor then, I gave him all the support in my power. I was a subscriber to his paper, and threw all the influence I had to him, in the way of official patronage."

As I turned to leave I remarked casually: "Foraker and his managers met with a surprise party in Toledo the other day."

"Ah, yes," replied the senator, smiling, "and he will meet with many more, or all signs fail."

The eldest son of Tolstoi, aged 27, has taken the degree of doctor of philosophy and has accepted an official appointment on the state prisons board. This is regarded rather as an avoidance of appearing to oppose his father's opinions too emphatically. He does not share them. He is a musician and a composer. The second son, Ilija, is married and lives quietly in the province of Tula. The third son is more truly a disciple of his father than any of the family. The eldest daughter, Tatjana, is radically opposed to her father's teachings. She is a fair painter. The second daughter, Mascha, lives after her father's method, she dressing as a peasant, working in the fields, and using her leisure time in caring for the poor. The London Tablet tells this anecdote of the late Archbishop Magee: "One day he went to stay with a clergyman well-known as a great supporter of the total abstinence movement. Before dinner the host explained to his guest that he would find no wine on the table, since he was afraid the servants would hardly understand his making any change; but, he added, 'you will find some wine in your bed-room.' Soon after the clergyman found himself staying with Dr. Magee. At dinner there was nothing but wine served to the guests, and the bishop took an early opportunity of saying: 'Mr. S., I fear there is nothing but wine, but you will find some water, sir, in your bed-room.'"

WAR WITH A GAS COMPANY

A Move to Take Away the Van Wert Charter.

Proceedings Have Been Instituted in the Supreme Court in An Interesting Case.

Columbus, O., Nov. 14.—Attorney General Watson has instituted proceedings in the supreme court to revoke the charter of the Van Wert Natural Gas company on the ground that it has violated the conditions on which its franchise was granted. It is claimed that the company has been requiring the payment of gas tells one year in advance, when, according to its agreement with the city, payment should be made only six months in advance.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The Evening Organ's Bad Break.

To the Editor: While looking over the Blade last night I came across a few items which may not have caught your eye. For instance, in the local columns is a mild-mannered kick against the cost of the election under the Australian system, the votes, it says, costing about $1 apiece. This kick is made, too, after the voters had indorsed the republican ticket, using the Australian ballot for that purpose. Why, I should think the Blade fellows would be willing to pay $5 a vote for a way of voting by which they got a majority for every man on their ticket, from governor down to coroner. If this kind of luck continues, the republicans need not have any campaign fund hereafter—the election will cost $1 a vote, and the democrats, being taxpayers, must help pay the fiddler. Even the prohibitionist, farmers' alliance, woman suffrage, and this new party that has just come into the field—the Knights of Labor—must help foot the bill. And yet the Blade is growling about the cost where its party gets everything, and the other fellows foot the bill!

But this is not the worst of the matter. In another column is found a proposition to hold another election—this time to decide whom the people prefer for United States senator. Well, the democrats constitute a considerable portion of "the people," and they ought to have a vote on the question too. But the trouble is, even if they were allowed to vote their votes wouldn't count, as a republican legislature is not in the habit of electing a democrat to the United States senate. Would the democrats be called upon to help pay the expenses of holding this special election, where they wouldn't be counted, no matter who was indorsed for senator? I fail to see any justice in such a proceeding.

In the Blade's editorial columns is found a grave proposition to set aside an election for United States senator already held and hold another, where the democrats, to use a homely expression, wouldn't be in it. And the worst of it is, the chance thus given the republicans to set aside the results of an election held two years ago came to them through the agency of a democratic measure—the Australian ballot—which they claim is such an expensive piece of election machinery, even when paid for out of the general funds. What do these fellows want, anyway—the whole earth?

In another editorial column the statement is made that "it is the history of all popular governments that, as a rule, there can be but two parties at a time." Under the Blade's plan of campaign, it is only necessary to have one party, and that the republican party. Elections may be held, it is true, but as only republican ballots will be counted, the result will be the same year after year—the republicans will hold all the offices and draw the salaries, while the other fellows will continue to pay the taxes or have their property sold at sheriff's sale.

What a splendid government we would have under such a system! Why, I don't believe John Sherman, bad as he is, would indorse such a plan. Yet it is proposed by one of the leading republican papers in Ohio, is backed up by Foraker et al, and, as the republicans have everything in sight just at present, an effort will be made to have this new political system go into effect at once.

BUSINESS.

A DEAD BARONESS.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—Baroness Von Waldersee, the morganatic wife of Louis, Duke of Bavaria, is dead. TOLEDO TO THE FRONT.

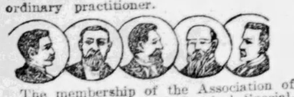
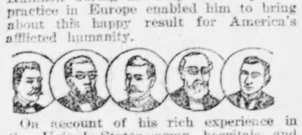
AS THE AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS OF THE Association of European Medical and Surgical Specialists.

Toledo's importance as a great railroad and commercial center and lake port city have come to be very generally known even beyond the confines of the United States. As an evidence of our prosperous and progressive city's far-reaching fame the Bee is authorized to state that The Association of European Medical and Surgical Specialists have adopted Toledo as their headquarters for America. An interview with Dr. Kalkhoff, the great European specialist, at 505 and 507 Summit street, between Oak and Orange, confirms the truth of the report. This powerful medical association of the old world is made up of the most skilled medical specialists, each one of whom has devoted his professional life to the study, treatment and mastery of some prevailing chronic, private or other disease which has baffled the skill of the ordinary practitioner.



The membership of the Association of European Medical and Surgical Specialists is made up of those master medical practitioners in different parts of Europe who banded themselves together for the purpose of an interchange of professional knowledge. By a perfect system of correspondence and comparison of results each member of the association secures for his patient the advantage of the knowledge of any or all of his expert associates according to the requirements of each particular case.

The people of Toledo and the country at large, afflicted with disease, are to be congratulated on the success which has attended Dr. Kalkhoff's efforts in securing the location of the European Medical and Surgical association in the United States and at so central a point as Toledo. Dr. Kalkhoff has thus given his adopted country the benefit of European medical skill heretofore not within the reach of any but the rich, who could take a trip to the old world. The high professional standing acquired by Dr. Kalkhoff during his hospital and private practice in Europe enabled him to bring about this happy result for America's afflicted humanity.



On account of his rich experience in the United States army hospitals and private practice in America as well as Europe, Dr. Kalkhoff is splendidly qualified to fill his present position at the head of the European specialists in this country.

The offices, parlors, laboratory, operating rooms, etc., of Dr. Kalkhoff's staff occupy the entire upper floors of the block at 505 and 507 Summit, between Oak and Orange streets. Hundreds of the latest European medical and surgical appliances are here, making them the most completely equipped doctor's office in America. Dr. Kalkhoff's past year's practice in Toledo has been truly very successful. Now that he has the aid of his European staff of physicians, together with the exhaustive professional knowledge of the association in Europe, the Bee predicts for himself and staff a degree of success unequalled in the history of medical science in this country.

AN AUTUMN IDYL.

October's winds are blowing cold;
The leaves are turning yellow,
And floating from the trees disclose
The luscious fruit and mellow.

The frosted corn so meek and white
Stands rustling in the breezes,
While underneath, the pumpkin vine
Will be the next that freezes.

The clover in the pasture lot
Is daily growing thinner,
And in the race for life 'twould seem
The weeds must be the winner.

The boys and girls with book in hand
Are seen along the highway,
While teacher, with a bunch of sprouts
Emerges from the by-way.

The migratory birds now fly
In search of one another,
And when the company's complete
They'll all fly off together.

A sadness that the summer's gone
Steals o'er me as I ponder,
And gladly would I take a wing
And with these songsters wander.

But suddenly the muse is slain;
A voice—I've heard a sweeter—
Unwelcomed to my senses comes,
"Now, John, put up the heater!"
—Kate Field's Washington.

BEESWAX.

Every woman is afraid that she will be buried alive.

Love is ever the beginning of knowledge, as fire is of light.

South Carolina derives about two hundred thousand dollars a year from the royalties upon her phosphate mines.

There are still dangers in the great mysterious deep. A devil fish six feet across was captured at Newport, Ore., a few days ago.

West Virginia is some pumpkins. Wheeling has on exhibition two pumpkins one weighing 125 pounds and the other 128 pounds.

It is proposed to erect a monument at Memphis to General N. B. Forrest, whom Robert E. Lee once called the greatest of Confederate generals.

A single tree may be turned to many useful purposes. From the American aloe tree is made thread, ropes, cables, paper, clothing, soap, sugar and brandy.

People of Japan are called by the family name first, the individual or what we call Chistian name next, and then the honorific—thus, "Smith Peter Mr."

A son of Gen. John C. Fremont is a lieutenant attached to the new cruiser Philadelphia. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood, like his father before him.

A Virginia mosquito measured from the tip of his beak to the end of his tail one and one-half inches, while his wings from tip to tip covered two inches. His legs were each fully an inch long.

The Corinth (Miss.) Herald tells of a man in its state named Philip Henson who had a beard ten feet long, but who found it so inconvenient and uncomfortable that recently he cut it off.

Last year there was a potato famine. This year, in one California district near Sacramento, sixty thousand bushels of potatoes were not dug up because it would not pay to market them.

"I'm sorry you don't like the new nurse," she said to her husband. "She is so good about singing to baby and keeping him quiet." "Yes," was the reply, "that's just it; I'd rather hear the baby cry."

Miss Alice C. Fletcher has her headquarters at Fort Lemni, Id. T., where she is making the allotment of lands to the Nez Perces Indians. Much of her time she is going over mountains and through canyons, living in a tent at night.

It would seem that the ladies of the harem possess a wonderful capacity for disposing of sweet things. France alone last year exported to Turkey and Egypt for the harems 1,600,000 francs' (£64,000) worth of fondants, pralines and marrons glaces.

There is early death to whoever goes into hospitals as a nurse. A healthy girl of 17 who devotes herself to hospital work will die 24 1-2 years sooner than a girl of the same age in the general population. This is supposed to be due to her liability to tuberculosis.

One of the missionaries of the Seamen's Mission in England has during the year visited 3,000 vessels and read the Scriptures in English, Danish and Norwegian. He has distributed 2,900 New Testaments and 700 gospels to English and foreign seamen and emigrants.

A North Carolinan of timid nature tried to run away from his wife, whose sharp tongue kept the poor fellow, as he expressed it, "on tender hooks," but he lost his way in the woods, got badly frightened, and returned as soon as he could get his bearings to captivity.

Something new or useful is all the time coming to the front in the west. A fine deposit of asbestos has been discovered in Jackson county, Oregon. It is pronounced by eastern experts to be of the very best quality. The machinery for cleaning, baling and shipping will soon be put in.

During a single year 500,000,000 mail packages passed through the Chicago postoffice, in addition to 27,000,000 tons of mail matter transferred from one train to another. The inspector in charge has under his jurisdiction 10,000 postmasters and their employes.

The timber cut in one year in Florida averages a little short of 200,000,000 feet, which is over 3 per cent. of the whole amount of mercantile timber standing in her forests. At this rate in about thirty years Florida would be cleared of her timber if there was no natural increase.

In different parts of the country have long existed a number of magic stones said to possess the most remarkable properties. Tradition tells how certain so-called "speaking stones" called out when a dead body was placed upon them, or contradicted a person who swore falsely by them.

Peddler—"Beg pardon, ma'am, but I am agent for Foeder's spice-root bitters, and I'm sure if the members of your family would try them they would soon have the finest appetites—"

Lady at the door (severely)—"This, sir, is a boarding house."—Street & Smith's Good News.

In the interior towns of northern China slips of the bark of the mulberry tree, bearing the imperial "chop" and a stamp which denotes their worth, have long been used as we use bank notes. Marco Polo found this kind of money there in his time, and they still have an extensive local circulation.

Phonographs are to be used in Mexican postoffices for the benefit of those who can not read or write. The illiterate Mexican will go to the postoffice, talk his message into the receiver of the phonograph, and when the cylinder reaches its destination the person addressed will be sent for and the message will be repeated to him from another machine.

Governor Brown, of Kentucky, and ex-Governor I. T. Crittenden, of Missouri, were schoolboys together at Center college, Kentucky, thirty-five years ago, and they are the warmest of friends today. Brown describes the youthful Crittenden as "a little red-headed, freckle-faced fellow," and Crittenden says of Brown, "He was the ugliest little fellow I ever saw."

It is said that the locating of St. Paul where it is was due to too much whisky elsewhere. According to Father Galtier, the officers at Ft. Snelling drove away the settlers who had located across the river because they furnished too much whisky to the soldiers, and they settled at various places along the river. Many having located at "the Cave," now St. Paul, a church was built there and a city grew around it.

The little busy bee finds a congenial home on the Pacific slope. The total number of bee hives in California last year is given as 55,043, of an aggregate valuation of 865,244. San Diego county comes first with 14,947 hives, Los Angeles is second with 13,871, Ventura third with 9,311, San Bernardino fourth with 5,140, Fresno fifth with 4,110, and Santa Barbara sixth with 3,115. Invo has 1,453, Kern 1,250 and Tulare 1,176. The valuation varies from 50 cents to $3 a hive.

S. R. Dennen, D. D., in the New England Magazine, says that every young man to have a home must have a wife. He can never substitute a boarding place, a club or a hotel for a home. This is to go through life hanging upon the skirts of life, leading a joyless, selfish, unnatural and unpatriotic existence. God putteth the solitary in families. It is the best provision he can make for their usefulness and welfare. This divine arrangement cannot be set aside, or improved upon, or written down as a "failure."

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

It May Be a Tie on Joint Ballot.

The State Canvassers to Come to the Front.

Much Political Figuring Will Be Done in the Empire State by Both Parties in the Next Few Weeks.

Albany, Nov. 14.—Candidate Fassett paid dearly for his fun. His campaign expense account which reached town to-day shows a total of nearly $10,000. Like Mr. Flower he gave $5,000 to the state committee of his party. Unlike that gentleman he paid a lot of unnecessary railroad fare and it is this item which accounts for nearly all of the remaining thousands.

While Mr. Fassett is resting and reflecting on what might have been, his political sponsor is bending all his energies toward saving the party's skin by holding the legislature.

The best figures obtainable to date show 18 republicans to 14 democrats in the senate and 65 democrats to 63 republicans in the assembly. This estimate allows the Second district of Queens to the republicans and concedes that Sullivan county is democratic by one majority.

These and several other very close assembly districts are yet to be passed on by the county canvassers. Admitting that O'Dair, of the Twenty-second New York district, is likely to vote with the democrats on strictly party matters, the legislature will be a tie on joint ballot, and there will be any amount of fun ahead when the time comes.

Party managers on both sides, however, keep up their claims to everything. They do not show any reason for their alleged faith, but simply stand in the open and yell like a lot of cowboys. The democratic claims to the possible control of the legislature are now based on the Fifteenth, Twenty-fifth and Twenty-seventh senate districts. They have apparently given up Boss Murphy's district as hopeless, though Senator Collins was around the capitol to-day still claiming his own election. He filed an expense account of $800.

His opponent, Derby, was also present and filed an account showing that he had spent $5,499, of which $3,500 was paid to the republican committee of Rensselaer county. Mr. Derby had nothing special to say, but his expense account spoke volumes, and the Rensselaer county item showed a keen appreciation of where his money would do the most good.

The avowed intention of the democrats is to get the senate tied in some way and trust to the state board of canvassers to declare Sherwood, of the Twenty-seventh district, ineligible. This would give Colonel Walker the seat and would "fix things lovely," as one of the state officers puts it. Without a doubt the decisive fight will be made before the state board which convenes on December 15. Until that time a lively skirmishing will continue all along the line, as there is no lack of interest in the result.

It is understood here that some of the most eminent lawyers in the state have already been retained to appear before the state canvassing board and argue the important questions which that body will be called to pass upon.

Since 1884, when Roscoe Conkling appeared before the state canvassers, their actions have not been of special public importance. Their coming session is therefore likely to be historical. Should the senate remain republican, as it now is, Governor Flower will be practically without patronage, unless he can make a dicker with the republican leaders to confirm his nominations. Some of the Hill men appear a little afraid of a combine of that kind, but it is generally believed that pledges were passed before the state convention which insured all the important departments against change.

WILL PLAY A LONE HAND.

Mills Not Doubling Up With Any Factions.

He Denounces the Latest Story Credited to Him As a Falsehood—If Elected It Will Be By Clean Methods.

Washington, Nov. 14.—For some time past there has been a rumor here that Mr. Mills had effected a combination with some of the anti-silver democrats of the east by which he had agreed, in case of his election as speaker, to so frame the committee on coinage, weights and measures as to prevent the passage of a free coinage bill at the next session of congress in order that the tariff might be kept to the front as the paramount issue in the next campaign.

This report was published this morning in a Baltimore paper, which stated that the conference was held in New York and the parties to it were ex-President Cleveland, the editors of the New York Times and St. Louis Republic and other anti-silver men.

Mr. Mills stamped the story as a falsehood from beginning to end, denying in the most positive manner that he had ever had any consultation on the subject with the gentlemen named.

Had the story been true it would undoubted have hurt Mr. Mills in the west and southwest, where free silver sentiment is strongest and where his chief suport comes from.

BISMARCK AND WILLIAM.

How the Kaiser Turned Down the Old Man.

With Scarcely Respectful Treatment the Young Emperor Turned the Chancellor Away.

London, Nov. 14.—The Daily News gives, on what it considers an authority, Bismarck's account to a friend of his quarrel with the emperor. His majesty said: "A short time ago you forbade the ministers to make their reports direct to me. It is my wish that they shall."

"Your majesty," answered I, "the law authorizes me alone to hear the ministers and then charges me to make the direct reports. If some of the ministers have been going to you directly it is in opposition to the chancellor alone, but if your majesty orders me I will yield and propose a change in the law."

Still excited, his majesty said: "My plans about the workingmen meet with your persistent opposition."

"I do not oppose your majesty's improvement, but my years of experience tell me that some of them need absolutely necessary modifications and I shall have the honor of submitting them to your majesty."

"No, no, no modifications. My orders as given must be carried out."

His severity exhausted my calmness, and I said, "I think I can perceive that my services are not fortunate enough to please your majesty, and that some thoughts exist of getting rid of me."

The emperor made a confirmatory gesture with his hand, upon which I continued: "Then I will hand your majesty my resignation, asking only permission to remain in office until May, so that I may personally defend the military bills in the Reichstag, as I fear that my successor may not succeed with them.

"The emperor shook his head several times and said 'No.' His majesty then dismissed me with the simple movement of his head."

CLOSING UP.

Various Pavements Being Finished and the Street Improvement Season Will Soon Be Over.

The constructing of a Medina stone pavement on Bridge street, from the Cherry street bridge to Front street, is progressing much more rapidly than was expected. It was at first intended that only part of the improvement should be completed before winter, but the work has gone so far that if bad weather does not set in too soon the whole street will be completed this season. This will be a big improvement for the benefit of the East Side and the citizens over there can appreciate it after the trials they have had with an impassible street.

Other improvements about the city are being finished up for the winter and the paving work will soon be finished for this year. It is expected that the fire brick paving on Islington street, the cedar block on Collingwood avenue, from Cherry to the creek and the cedar block on Front street will be completed in a day or two. On Thirteenth street the contractors are hauling away the condemned brick and replacing it with new, and this work will probably be the last of the season.

The fire brick paving on Washington street was completed to-day.

CHOPPED HER TO PIECES.

An Insane Man's Murderous Deed at Arcola.

An Aged Negress Tried to Save the Wife and Children and Lost Her Life in the Attempt.

Greenville, Miss., Nov. 14.—Wednesday night Noah Williams, a white farmer living near Arcola, 25 miles from this place, was seized with a fit of insanity, and cut to pieces with a hatchet an old negro woman, Beckie Phillips.

A few nights previous Williams, with gun in hand, left his home in one of his insane spells, leaving his wife and children alone. He was discovered the day afterwards in some negro quarters and brought back.

Apparently his reason returned and he was all right until Wednesday night, when he began to attack his wife and children in a violent and brutal manner.

The faithful old negress, who had been in the employe of the family for many years, interfered as she had on similar occasions, when Williams seized a hatchet and chopped the woman to pieces.

In the meantime the wife and children made their escape to the nearest neighbors, who hurried to the scene and found Williams in his under clothing, blacking himself with coal and soot. He will be sent to the insane asylum at Jackson.

BAD ECZEMA ON BABY

Head One Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not help him. We then used your three CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When we began using them his head was a solid sore from the crown to the eyebrows. It was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small places on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up, and had to keep mittens on his hands to keep his finger nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in anyway get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDIES cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

THIS IS THE BEST equipped, the largest and most reliable Medical dispensary in the United States for the cure of the above named diseases as well as OLD SORES and ULCERS, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, ECZEMA, BARBER'S ITCH, etc., which are by the mode of treatment practised at this institution rapidly and radically cured.
THE TREATMENT given at this Dispensary is peculiarly our own and is different from that given by any medical practitioner, the remedies used being the discoveries of our Dr. Samuel Chevier Evans, who has given all his time to the study of this particular class of diseases, and his life to their production and perfection. They are infallible. Their efficacy is amply attested by the thousands of cures that have been performed by our treatment. No one need suffer from the many ills above enumerated because we can guarantee a cure if the sufferer will but call at our Dispensary or write us.
OUR GUARANTEE IS NO CURE NO PAY. In proof of which we are willing and anxious to take the cases of RESPONSIBLE AFFLICTED PERSONS ON TRIAL. Those suffering from NERVOUS DEBILITY, the symptoms of which are a dull, distressed mind, which unfits them for performing the business and social duties of life, making happy marriage an utter impossibility, causing depression of spirits, evil forebodings of the future, feeling as tired in the morning as when retiring, lost in mood, trembling, confusion of thought, dizzy and weak eyes, constipation, paleness, pain and weakness in the limbs, etc., should consult us at once and have vitality be restored to strong, vigorous MANHOOD.

MID-NOVEMBER MEET

Of the Family Circle---A Variety of Topics Discussed.

The Curse of Drink—Can Woman Keep a Secret—White Heather That Brought Good Luck—News from Aunt Dee—Thanksgiving Chat and Recipes.

WHAT MATTER?

What matter, darling, at the last,
The rest that comes to weary feet,
Will be as kind as though we passed
Along the paths with roses sweet.
Mayhap the soul will stronger be
For what it gained through suffering here
And in the long eternity
The meaning of it all come clear.

When this pale dust we care for so,
And mourn with tears of transient grief
Is turned to mold, again to know
The light, in graveyard flower and leaf,
Who then will ask or dream or care
About the little world of woe
In which we had so great a share?
That other life to which we go
Will have no need of vain regrets,
A heritage of error here;
Or, if the soul indeed forgets,
Then more than all, what matter, dear?

LITTLE BLOSSOM.

"O dear, I'm so tired and lonesome,
I wonder why mama don't come;
She told me to shut up my blue eyes,
And 'fore I waked up she'd be home.

"She said she was going to see grandma,
Who lives by the river so bright,
And I s'pose my mama's fallen in there,
And p'raps she won't come home to-night.

"I guess I'se afraid to stay up here,
Without any fire or light;
But God's lighted his lamps in heaven;
I see them all twinkling and bright.

"I think I'll go down to meet papa;
Perhaps he has stopped at the store;
'Tis a great, pretty store full of bottles,
Wish he wouldn't go there no more.

"Sometimes he's so sick and so dizzy,
He stumbles and falls up the stair;
And once when he comed in the parlor,
He kicked at my poor little chair.

"And mama was all pale and frightened,
And hugged me up close to her breast,
And called me her 'poor little Blossom,'
And—guess I forgetted the rest.

"But I loves him, and guess I'll go find him;
Perhaps he'll come home with me soon,
And then it won't be dark and lonesome
Waiting for mama to come."

* * * * *

Out into the night went the baby,
The dear little Blossom so fair,
With eyes that were clear as the heaven,
With halo of golden-brown hair.

And adown the dark street she wanders,
The dear little Blossom so bright,
'Till at last she has reached the great "store-house,"
All brilliant with music and light.

She pushed the heavy door open,
Though her touch was as light as her breath;
And her tired feet entered the portal
That leads but to ruin and death.

And down the long hall she pattered,
Her baby-blue eyes opened wide
'Till she spied, in the corner, her papa,
And the tiny feet paused at his side.

"O papa," she cried, when she spied him,
And her voice rippled out sweet and clear,
"I thought if I comed I would find you,
And now I's so glad I is here.

"The lights are so pretty, dear papa,
And I think the music so sweet;
But it's almost supper time, papa,
And Blossom wants something to eat.

A moment the bleared eyes gazed wildly
Down at the face sweet and fair,
Then, as a demon possessed him
He grasped at the back of a chair.

A moment—a second, 'twas over;
The work of the fiend was complete,
And poor little innocent Blossom
Lay broken and crushed at his feet.

Swift as the light came his reason,
And showed him the deed he had done;
With a groan that a demon might pity,
He knelt by the poor little one.

He pressed the wee form to his bosom,
And lifted the fair golden head;
A moment the baby lips trembled.
Then poor little Blossom was dead.

Then the law and its majesty seized him,
And exacted just penalty, death.
For only a fiend or a madman
Could deprive such a baby of breath.

God pity men, women and children,
Who are crushed by the juggernaut, rum;
May press, pulpit, and platform united,
Fight on till deliverance come.
Toledo. CARRIE MEYERS.

From the day the enraged Ohio mothers, wives and sisters turned the liquor into the streets in a small interior town in Ohio, less than twenty years ago, the W. C. T. U., an outgrowth of that uprising, has expanded to over half a million members. It has ten thousand local societies in the United States, with organizations in England, Japan, China, Honolulu, Australia, India and South Africa. Delegates from all these countries are present in the national convention of that body in session in Boston this week. The society has a publishing house in Chicago, conducts a national temperance hospital and is building a woman's temple in that city which will cost over a million dollars. This contradicts any possible argument against woman's incompetency to work in organized society. This has all been woman's work, distinctively, and in the face of great difficulties.

You know it has been said in old times and new times, and repeated until it is thoughtlessly accepted as a truism that women cannot keep a secret. That these latter days have proven it to be as false as falsehood itself, is not considered. Think of the women telegraph operators, the private secretaries, stenographers and type-writers for business men and firms. A Western Union officer, in a recent interview, said complimentary things of the fidelity and patience of the women in their employ. So far as other than business secrets are concerned, there is no no sex in the gossiping tendency. There are men and women both, who tell secrets, and men and women who would suffer torture before they would divulge them, to the injury of another. Cross the old saying out of your books, it has no business there.

The Fountain of Youth.

People are apt to attribute haggard looks to mental activity, and to counsel repose and tranquility as a cosmetic.

To the thoughtful traveler the falsity of this theory is obvious. If is in the country village, where the church meeting is the theater, the mail the excitement, the days weeks, and one can hear the cows breathe in the deathly stillness, that the greatest number of sunken cheeks, wrinkled brows, leaden complexions and lifeless expressions are to be seen among the women yet in their thirties. In the seething metropolis, living three lives and enjoying two, are to be found scores of women—mothers or perhaps grandmothers—possessing all the vitality, freshness and much of the bloom of early youth.

The fact is, it is not activity, but drowsiness, the presence of sleeping or dead thought in the soul, that is aging. Unvaried scenes, the repetition to-morrow of to-day, to-day of yesterday, this week of the preceding one, the ability to calculate exactly what each neighbor is doing at each hour of the day—the inevitable clock-like routine of conception, the monotony of existence, the utter weariness of an empty think-tank that saps the very vernal springs of life and creates decay in the face.

The women who never grow old are the student women—those who daily drink in new chyle through memorizing, thoroughly analyzing, and perfectly assimilating subjects apart from themselves. Study is development—is eternal youth. The student woman who makes wise use of her acquisitions, has no time to corrugate her brow with dread thought of the beauty-destroyer leaping fast behind her. Not considered or invited, Old Age keeps his distance.

Brain culture based on noble motives means sympathy, heart gentleness, charity, graciousness, enlargement of sense, feeling, power.

Such a being cannot became a fossil. She has found the elixir of life, the fountain of eternal youth.

A SPRIG OF WHITE HEATHER.

Real Life Sketch Pilfered from a Private Letter.

"You sent me a sprig of white Scotch heather for good luck, and listen what it brought us."

(Now, before any more is copied, it is explained that identity must be hidden else the trouble your hostess will get into appears at once. The extracts are transcribed to show what cheer a hopeful helpful woman can bring to a man and to the whole family circle, when trouble clouds lower the same as when the sun is shining).

To quote again: "About the middle of June last I came home from one of my many society engagements and found my dear young daughter in tears and her papa sitting with head bowed on his hands in the library. Something had happened. It was a business reverse, money and position snatched away" (details not necessary here).

"My heart gave a bound and then went down like lead but I gave no sign, and as soon as I could recover calm speech, I said, "Is that all?" and we talked ourselves into good spirits. I cast about, myself, what to do. Then came in upon us notice of death in the dear old home; then the landlord raised on rent and we resolved not to stay (then the white heather came). I thought it out. I rented bright and pleasant rooms, told my friends I was tired of society work and worry and was going to work for myself a bit and see if I was too rusty to be absolutely useless in case of need (I didn't say the need was close at hand). You know I am known among my friends for sudden freaks, impulses and experiments, so nobody did anything worse than to smile patronizingly, as if to say, "crazy woman; she doesn't know when she is well off." This is what I did: bringing to my aid my training in days of self-support, before I was set in the midst of a happy house, I opened rooms for dressmaking, according to either old or new methods. My first order was for a Jenness-Miller costume for a college reception and came from the president's wife. My heart was in my work, for, you remember, artistic dressing is a hobby of mine and I seemed almost glad of opportunity to put some of the designs I had had in mind for myself, into execution. The gown was a complete success. I surprised even myself. I have never advertised a line and I wish you could see my order book—orders from towns out of my own city and state even. This was in July. Since then I have hired a handsome flat, have two women for helpers—and, by the way, let me tell you about that flat: I wanted it; a family got in ahead of me; they would not prove desirable tenants and I knew it. They drove nails into the nice walls, and knowing the agent, I told him, I did. They disgusted their aristocratic neighbors by hanging the week-day wash prominently in front of the fire; was a sheltered back lawn for the same. I watched and waited and without any maneuvering or anything, I have it on a lease and at remarkably low rent. Nor is this all (egotistically about myself). W— has a better position than before, but I am too much interested to give up my business.

See how the charm has worked? In June, in despair, in October up-hill we go at a good jog."

There; isn't there help and comfort for others in such a heartsome recital of struggles and victories. Rest assured the road was not so smooth as it sounds gone over with a pencil. But it shows what a woman's courage and perseverance can accomplish and proves anew the oft-repeated assertion that she is the braver of the two, and the inspirer of both in times of adversity.

The Thanksgiving Benison.

What pleasing reminiscences Thanksgiving awakens. The joyous scenes of the past linked with those of to-day, present themselves to the mind and fancy mingles with the realistic to aid us in the drama. Once a year, at least, we burst the bands of the narrowly confined and sordid aims of life and our troubled and wrinkled countenances expand with a generous and benignant smile towards all humanity. Our homes are thrown open to relatives and guests and the mirth of youth mingled with the milder tones of middle life in the presence of the "winter of age," (the dear grandparents,) makes the life drama complete.

The time-honored turkey is announced and the table of ample dimensions loaded with well prepared food, is eagerly surrounded and we store away a meal fit to make us dream of our way-back ancestors or indulge in a night of painful wakefulness. The evening is made joyous with songs and stories and it is always a season to be remembered.

Altho' Thanksgiving awakens pleasing recollections, they are not unfrequently accompanied with those of a sadder hue, when memory turns the shroud of departed joys, of endearing ties ruptured by the ruthless hand of death, it strikes the key-note of the dirge of our remembrances." But over and above it all is the abiding faith that will endure to the end. MAUD.

THE SCRAP BASKET.

A Problem in Addition.

Only once in a while, a social glass of cheer,
Only once in a while, a drink with friends held dear,
Only twice in a while, just another to make one merry,
Only twice in a while, a glass of port or sherry.
Only three times in a while, whisky, brandy, or rum,
Only three times in a while, and a man forgets his home.
Only four times in a while, God pity the wife and child,
Only four times in a while—the brain is delirious and wild
The victim has fallen at last,
The life of the drunkard is past.

What a new face courage puts on everything! A determined man, by his very attitude and the tone of his voice, puts a stop to defeat and begins to conquer.—Emerson.

Particular interest has been evinced by Mexican women as to the part they are to have in the exposition. Nothing more extraordinary has transpired in connection with the exposition than the announcement, which was made some time since, that Mexican women would be given official recognition upon the world's fair commission. To fully realize how remarkable this fact is it should be remembered that Mexican women have hitherto been fettered by almost oriental restrictions.

A ladies' boarding house is about to be opened in New York, in which only ladies shall be admitted, and no rules are to be allowed to restrict the liberty of the boarders. Each one is to have her piano, sewing machine, cat, typewriter, canary bird or whatever else she will, and when one's cat eats up the other's canaries, or when the poodles of Miss Doe worry the tabbies of Miss Roe, the interested parties will be allowed to settle the resultant difficulties by themselves.

Snow on the Mountains.

White fabrics woven among the clouds
Enwrap the silent hills that lie
Like dim dead giants in their shrouds,
Clasped in the blue arms of the sky.

The most hardened mondaine, who wears a mask of frank innocence, fares better with men than the good, sweet-hearted girl who puts on blase airs, and pretends to be a little wicked.

Many years ago a prominent clergyman was consulted by the ladies of his congregation about certain clerical work in which they were interested. Smiling at their earnestness, he said: "That's right, ladies, make a fuss—make a fuss! That's the only way to get work done in this world! Set about it yourself, and make a fuss while you do!" And so it is. Thinking about wrongs and sighing over them never mended one. But the people who exert themselves to right the wrong, making a good stir about it while they do, and worrying at other people to exert themselves too, will often force the other people into activity in sheer self-defense. The other people would like to sit quiet and take it out in sighing, but these energetic fussers will not let them. At last, to get rid of the agitators, they rouse up, go to work with a will, and accomplish what is asked of them for the sake of the peace they obtain thereby. But whatever their motive, all mankind has the benefit. It is not only well to get wrongs righted, it is also well to get sluggish people stirred up occasionally.

John D. Rockefeller, who has a larger annual income than any other man in America, has been hard at work in pursuit of his lost health the last summer. He has spent four months on his farm in Ohio, and has given himself up entirely to outdoor pursuits. Arrayed in overalls and shirt sleeves, he has worked with his men plowing and planting his fields and cultivating and gathering in his crops. He has sawed wood for days, and has shoveled the earth for roadways in his township.

This little scrap is tossed in to remind us that we who are obliged to toil for daily bread are often blessed with the best things of earth, that the men who have so much money they don't know what to do with come to nature's door and beg of her.

Miss Mary White Bond, who died recently in Florence, Massachusetts, was the first woman ever chosen in that state to the treasurership of a bank—a position she occupied in the Florence Savings bank at the time of her death. The bank never lost a dollar by her investments, and she was highly esteemed for her business ability. She was also a member of the public school committee, and had been an excellent teacher herself.

Baby choked in his sleep one day,
Only a harmless choke, 'twould seem,
But Marjorie settled it, in her way:
"I 'spect," she said, "he swallowed a dream."

The office of train dispatcher on the New London Northern railroad is held by Miss Lizzie E. D. Thayer. As this is a single-track road, her position is one of great responsibility, since she controls the movements of all trains, from one end of the line to the other. Miss Thayer was for some time assistant to the former train dispatcher, and upon his resignation, pending the appointment of his successor, proved herself so thoroughly capable of doing the work of the place that the position was conferred on her. She is at her office in New London from seven in the morning until six at night, superintending the 181 miles of track under her care. She has a man assistant, but the responsibility is all hers. During her two years of service there has been no accident for which she is to blame.

A new work for women has been begun by Miss Ada L. Tims, who is the racing reporter at Independence, Iowa. She is the representative of the Associated Press in that town, and is the correspondent for fifteen newspapers.

The iron bedstead painted white, with draperies of white dotted muslin and an all-white dressing, is not only pretty and dainty to look upon, but is commended to housekeepers because it is so easy to keep in order, and because a fresh coat of paint will make it look like new, while all its decorations can visit the laundry and return from it the better for the trip to the land of soap-suds and hot water.

For polishing windows and mirrors use a teaspoonful of ammonia in each pailful of water, or enough to make it feel soft; dry with a clean cloth or soft paper.

But see the fading many-colored woods,
Shape deepening over shade, the country round
Imbrown; crowded umbrage, dark and dun,
Of every hue, from wan declining green
To sooty dark.

Paper Boxes for Bon Bons.

Small paper boxes are used so much that a description of how to make them may be of interest to your readers. Bonbons, salted almonds, salted peanuts, salads and ice cream are served in them one box full for each person and the size of the box is varied according to the amount desired to be served to each person.

Take a piece of stiff writing paper 4 by 6 inches and fold one-third the length towards the center, then fold the other third over the first third (F. 2,) then fold the four corners towards the center like F. 3 and F. 4 on the third last folded. Now open it all out, then fold the first third towards center like F. 5, then fold the corners where creased (F. 6,) then fold A of F. 6 to B. For F. 8 fold A to B on creased line, fold corners where creased and fold A to B of the last third which was folded over, when it will look like F. 10 Take hold of A in F. 11 with one hand and B with the other and pull apart when you will have F. 12. Now crease dotted lines to form your box when it will look like F. 13. Tie a very narrow ribbon around A. B. of F. 13, this will help to keep the box stiff and will add to its beauty. The boxes can be left like F. 10 until you are ready to use them and in that shape can be sent any distance without trouble. When used line with waxed paper and then the grease will not penetrate the paper. When the paper is unfolded it is found creased like F. 14 and the dotted lines turn towards you and the others turn from you.

Success for One and All.

No one thing helps woman more than the success of any woman in useful lines. As every idle, ignorant, or vicious woman is made a reproach to all women, so a real success lifts all women. She who is a good scholar helps to take the brand from every other woman's intellect; she who is a good teacher helps remove the absurd prejudices against woman's intellect, for she proves that give her the same chance as men and she can do as good work. She who shows good business ability increases respect for all women's business ability; she who makes a good physician has put every woman into a larger place; she who masters law and sticks to her business has a tremendous influence for the uplifting of other women; the brainy woman journalist rapidly undermines the old walls which heathenism built around women, and the spiritual woman preacher unlocks fountains that no man can reach, for woman's way is not man's way, and the world needs her talents as well as his.

* * *

Women can refuse to take the paper which reviles them or ignores what is their due. They need not smile over senseless jokes about the mother-in-law or the wicked ones about the jealous wife. Women can quietly "strike," always striking the right one, for there are men, and men; be sure we do not "strike" our friends. Let us echearten them, and be as eager to help him who is just to us as we are to show the unjust one displeasure. Selfishness would keep women locked out of every place of power and honor, but many noble men are fighting a hard battle for us. Let us show that we are worth the controversy by helping our friends, and thus the cause of justice. We can absent ourselves from the services of the unjust. We can make sure that our money and our presence are expended on those (never the time serving) who dare to do right, and let editors, clergymen and business men know that we sustain them because they are just to women, or that we withdraw patronage because they are unjust, and thus we shall arrest their thought and help all women.—S. S. in San Francisco Call.

FROM THE SUMMER LAND.

A Colony In Southern California Delightfully Pictured.

Dear Household—I think I am a very dilatory correspondent, but I am always so thoroughly occupied there seems to be little chance to write.

This first day of November the birds are singing like spring. The mocking bird is the leader, and he is an "all the year round" inhabitant, not one of the sort who only spend the winter, as many people do, who do not know that the summers here are much more tolerable than in many sections of the east. There are other sweet singers here with less varied notes, but the mocking bird is the most charming of them all, and "sunny days—and sunny days and all day long" his rollicking song can be heard from tree top and chimney top or wayside hedge.

There is nothing here to indicate the autumnal season, save here and there a deciduous tree or group of trees, whose leaves are turning yellow and beginning to fall. There are so few of these, however, they are scarcely noticeable. The orange and lemon trees prevail mostly and they, of course, are green and growing all the year round. The ornamental trees, which are also evergreen, include the eucalyptus, pepper, Australian fern, pine, cypress, umbrella tree, magnolia, rubber accacia, etc. The fruit of the orange shows here and there a lighter color, a hint that they are beginning to ripen. Lemons bloom and fruit all the year, and one often sees ripe fruit, green fruit and blossoms at the same time on a tree. A tree that grows all the year round has greatly the advantage of one that has perhaps less than half the year in which to grow; so that trees here, three or four years old, are really as large as the same varieties eight or ten years old in the east.

Ontario colony is in the heart of a broad and beautiful valley, thirty-nine miles east of Los Angeles, with mountains in view on every side. The nearest are on the north, where they loom up, grand and tall, only seven miles away, though they do not look to be half that far. "Old Baldy," the farthest north of the group, is nine thousand feet high.

Euclid avenue extends north and south through the center of the colony from the S. P. R. R. on the south, to the base of the mountains, seven miles. This is a grand avenue, two hundred feet wide, lined with double rows of trees. Through the center of this avenue the street car runs up a gently inclined slope to the base of the mountain. The car is drawn up by horses. At the end of the line a platform is drawn out at the back of the car, on which the tired horses ride down hill; the car being propelled by gravity, comes down in one-third the time it takes to go up. This ride is exhilarating, and it gives one a comfortable feeling to look back and see the patient animals nodding and dozing.

The view of the valley that we get from the northern terminus of the street car line is magnificent. The whole length of the avenue is flanked on either side by lovely orange and lemon groves, varying in size from the two and one-half acre villa lot to twenty and forty acres. And the pretty cottages along the line, as well as the more pretentious mansion, have their rose shaded porches, and are surrounded by a profusion of roses and other lovely flowers. This place is the paradise of the rose—our next neighbor has two hundred and fifty sorts, many of them in bloom almost continually. I wish I could give you an idea of their loviness. I wish I were a poet, for language always fails me when I try to write of flowers.

Everything here grows so luxuriantly. We see oleanders ten or fifteen feet high (three or four years old) in bloom from July to January. Heliotropes running up to the eaves of a veranda and so on without limit.

Ontario is called the "model colony," and indeed it seems to be no misnomer, for a finer climate, a more desirable location, or a better class of people would be hard to find. A college was built and endowed by the founders of the colony, eight years ago, when the colony was started. No saloon has ever been allowed within its limits, though strenuous efforts have been made to establish one; the people seem to have the temperance cause very much at heart. The water supply here is abundant, and the water pure and soft. This is an advantage that Ontario has over some other cities and towns in the state. We only irrigate in summer, as winter rains afford plenty of moisture for growing vegetation. The principal industry here is fruit growing, and, as I have said, oranges and lemons prevail and are considered the most profitable, and, if we may believe what we hear, fortunes are readily made in the growth of these.

An Embryo Poet.

The young lady to whom the following lines were inscribed contributes them to the Household as evidence of genius in the bud. They were written by a boy not quite eight years of age, in a burst of admiration for his "Auntie Maud:"

There was a girl in our town,
And she had eyes of lovely brown;
She had black hair and crooked teeth,
And a nose that covered her face like a wreath.
She was short and slender and with all of her splendor,
She looks like a girl with the Grecian bender.

"Something for Our Fathers."

A neat little note signed "Margaret and Daisy" comes to the Household table, inquiring:

Can you tell us any thing simple, yet pretty and inexpensive, that two girls could make for their fathers for Xmas?

The hostess invites every reader of the household to help these two girls, and warns the helpers there is no time to spare. Do the fathers wear spectacles? there are cases (for the wall or pocket). Are they readers of books? a pretty book mark, appropriately inscribed is a continual reminder of remembrance. Then there are pen wipers and sheets of blotting paper in pretty tints made into books with simply decorated celluloid or card paper covers. Fine plain kerchiefs in silk or linen with papa's initial embroidered in the corner. There are little pocket pin holders which some gentlemen find handy and convenient: Take two round or heart-shaped pieces of strong pasteboard, place them evenly together, fit velvet or plush smoothly on both sides, and join at the edges, oversewing in close, even stitches. Along this finished edge place pins as thickly as possible. If one can embroider or paint, the initial letter of the recipient or a rose-bud or vine is pretty finish on either cover. Wrist warmers knitted of fine Saxony wool or silk are comfort for cold weather. A hat band with name embroidered or hand painted is another pretty trifle; a handkerchief case for the dresser. Directions for making any of these could be given.

Chapter on Potatoes.

The stand-by vegetable, the staff of life, along with bread, is the potato. It is truthfully said by a home department writer:

No article of food is more abused in the cooking than the potato. The custom in too many kitchens is to dump the succulent tubers into a kettle, large and small together, and boil them, the faster the better, until the small ones and those underneath are a pulp, while those on top and the larger ones are not more than half done. For boiling potatoes be sure first of all that the water in the kettle will boil when the potatoes are ready. Choose them of uniform size. The writer has found that potatoes about twice the size of an egg are the best for boiling; larger than that they cook on the outside too much before the middle is done. If large ones are used cut them in halves. Scrub thoroughly either with a small brush or coarse cloth. Except when they are new and the skins are very thin, pare them, and in doing this cut them as smoothly as possible so as to keep their shape. If they are old they are much improved by standing in cold water two hours. Put in either a porcelain or granite kettle (never tin or iron), cover with boiling water, add a teaspoonful of salt for every quart of water, cover closely and boil carefully; rapid cooking always breaks them. Boiling takes about one-half hour. Try with a steel fork. If soft, instantly drain every drop of water from them, shake in the open air a moment to dry them, and serve at once in an uncovered dish, with a folded napkin laid over them. If they must wait keep them in the kettle on the back of the range, and cover with a folded towel instead of the kettle cover.

To mash potatoes have ready some hot milk, the quantity depending on the number of potatoes; six require about one-half cup. As soon as the potatoes are done and drained mash with a wire masher until perfectly free from lumps. The wooden mashers sometimes used are not as good; instead of making the potatoes light they pack them down and make them heavy. For every six potatoes use a tablespoon of butter, one small teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon each of white pepper and celery salt, and the hot milk. Beat vigorously with a perforated wooden spoon, and serve, piled lightly in a hot dish. They should not be the least bit dry, neither moist enough not to keep in shape in the dish. Do not brown them in the oven, as by so doing much of their lightness is lost.

In baking potatoes always choose them of the same size. Clean well. Turn once or twice to keep from scorching. If the oven has a grate it is best to bake them upon that. Keep the oven at a uniform heat. It generally takes one hour for them to cook perfectly. Served covered with a napkin, and they should come to the table crisp and clean on the outside, while inside they should be white, dry and glistening.

To make potato souffle choose potatoes as nearly alike as possible in shape and size. Bake, and when well done remove a slice from one end and carefully scoop out the inside; mash, season well and pile lightly in the skins, heaping them on top. Moisten the tops with a little yolk of egg, brown in a quick oven and serve.

CHAT.

Lisbet writes to say good words for the Weekly Bee. She knows that it takes the place of a magazine in some families. She says, "with the variety of topics, every reader must be pleased." She deprecates the long accounts of prize fights and other brutal exhibitions, which she sees in some newspapers and would like to see our people rise above the level of Spanish bull fights and English game-cock matches. She asks "are the silent pens an indication that people fear to attack the evil, or are those who sanction and enjoy already so greatly in the majority that business policy forbids the word of denunciation?" Lisbet thinks the newspapers speak too lightly and slightingly of religion. There is much to be said upon the topics she so gently touches.

Our occasional contributor, Alice C. E——, who has been ill for weeks with neuralgia in the head, a long and painful season, sends a line of greeting to the family circle and to say that she will be in for a visit as soon as she is able. May the time speedily come.

Dear Aunt Dee; we are glad to hear from her again, and to know she is so happily situated in so delightful a region of country. What the rose gardens of California are, some of us know. Aunt Dee has been our faithful member for a number of years, writing first from Petoskey, Michigan, then from Overton, Nebraska, and now from the golden state. Wherever she has wandered she has not forgotten the Household. That she and those dear to her may find the health they seek, and all other good fortune (which is secondary to it) is the wish of us all—one speaking for all with perfect assurance.

The Household is indebted to one of Toledo's good housekeepers, a busy woman with exceptional mental gifts as well, for recipes this week, preluded by so happy a bit of wisdom. Call again.

How to Arrange a Storeroom.

Every house should be provided with a storeroom. By a storeroom I do not mean a room into which plunder of all kinds is thrown; but a cool, light, dry room, or closet, in which provisions may be stored. Shelves should be arranged around the walls, the under one enclosed as a closet.

The top shelf should contain such articles as soap, starch-box, indigo, with tin boxes for rice, tapioca, macaroni, cheese, tea, coffee, oat meal, gelatine, crackers, etc. Many articles, such as tea-biscuits and wafers, are packed in tin boxes, so that a housekeeper has little trouble in obtaining them for her shelves.

Paint each box or can and paste a label with the name of the contents upon the side so that there is no delay in searching for the article wanted.

The shelves enclosed may be used for jam pots, jellies, preserves, sugar jars, dried fruit jars, etc. Large brass hooks should be attached to the upper shelf, or ceiling, for ham, dried beef and bacon.

Lemons and oranges should be placed in open baskets, so that the air may get to them. Eggs are also better for the air.

This room or closet should be kept in perfect order. Provisions should not be bought in very large quantities, as they become stale. The housekeeper should examine her storeroom once every week and remove all decayed fruit and vegetables.—Daughters of America.

KITCHEN CONFERENCE.

Since We Must Eat, Let Us Have Good Things and Enjoy It.

Dear Household: I have somewhere read that it is a blessed thing that we must eat, because upon this necessity we have woven so many pretty customs. We eat a "welcome home," we eat a "godspeed," we eat together because we love each other. We eat to celebrate anything and everything. And since we must eat, and since we love to eat, I send you recipes for a few things that are good to eat:

Sponge Cake (very nice when fresh).—One cup pulverized sugar, two eggs, one cup flour, one heaping teaspoonful baking powder, four tablespoonfuls quite warm water. Bake in moderately heated oven.

Veal Loaf.—Three lbs veal steak, three eggs, piece of butter size of walnut, three spoonfuls cream, 16 crackers rolled fine, chop meat fine while raw, beat the eggs, mix all together and season to taste with salt, pepper and a little summer savory, form into a loaf, put a little water in the pan and small lumps of butter on top of the loaf, bake until a nice brown, baste often at first.

Delmonico Bouillon.—Make a soup stock of a shin bone of beef, skim it well when cold, being careful to remove every particle of fat. Then take three lbs of lean beef chopped, add three pints of water, one carrot, three onions, one turnip, a few celery tops, simmer about four hours, strain into the stock and add to this a good pinch of sweet basil, thyme, three bay leaves chopped fine, two dozen of whole allspice, six cloves and a small piece of lemon rind, boil an hour, then strain again and when a little cool stir in the whites of two eggs, then let it boil about ten minutes, take off as much scum as possible, then strain through a double cheesecloth bag, this will make four quarts, which when cold will be a stiff jelly. Mrs. C.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

London wheat market quiet and steady. Corn rather easier. Weather fair. Liverpool wheat quiet. Corn steady.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,005,147 bus., compared with 511,736 bus. on the same day last year.

The Detroit Market Report says: Detroit's commercial bodies have appointed the following executive committee of nine whose duty it will be to call a convention at Washington, D. C., at the earliest practical date, for considering the interests of navigation on the northwestern lakes: Board of Trade—Wm. C. Maybury, Wm. Livingston, Jr., Geo. M. Lane, Merchants' and Manufacturers Exchange—Wm. S. Crane, John N. Bagley, J. Bradshaw Howarth. Vessel Owners' Association—Eber Ward, E. M. Peck, Jas. Mellen.

Our table of exports of breadstuffs shows an increase in value in four months over 1890 of $64,199,985.

Government Report of Exports.—We print herein the United States treasury department table of exports of breadstuffs for October and for four months in 1891 and 1890.

The exports of wheat (and flour expressed in wheat) for October equaled 13,107,400 bu, compared with 6,980,100 bu in October, 1890.

The exports for four months (flour and wheat) equal 84,251,647 bu of wheat, compared with 29,048,043 bu in October, 1890.

Of the exportation in flour monthly, there was shipped from our Pacific ports 527,979 barrels of flour and 11,865,505 bu of wheat, equal to 14,240,510 bu of wheat, which deducted from the aggregate leaves 68,011,131 bu as the movement from our Atlantic ports.

The exports of rye in four months equal 6,035,239 bu, against 269,289 bu in the same time in 1890. The exports of corn in four months equal 10,513,864 bu, against 15,342,013 bu in the same time in 1890.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 493,411 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain this week at eight principal western points are: Wheat, 7,767,000 bu; corn, 1,431,000 bu; oats, 2,437,000 bu. Previous week: Wheat, 7,965,000 bu; corn, 1,397,000 bu; oats, 2,705,000 bu. Corresponding week in 1890: Wheat, 3,808,000 bu; corn, 1,403,000 bu; oats, 1,712,000 bu; showing an increase in 1891 of: Wheat, 3,959,000 bu; corn an increase of 28,000 bu, and oats an increase of 725,000 bu.

The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic ports were 291,979 bu of wheat and flour to an aggregate of 500,000 bu. Exports of corn were 185,605 bu., and of oats 50,765 bu.

Bradstreet's reports exports of wheat from United States ports, both coasts, for the week is 4,490,000 bu. Previous week, 3,820,000 bu., showing 670,000 bu. increase over previous week.

English markets as reported herein are steady but very quiet.

Prohibition.

It is announced that the Russian order interdicting the exportation of wheat is to take effect to-day. As stated herein some days since, the lateness of the season and the near advent of the close of navigation of some of the Russian ports, has neutralized what effect the order might have had a month since. None of the markets on either side of the ocean are effected by it. Indeed, prices on American markets are lower.

Russian Exports.

As an evidence of the magnitude of the exports now to cease, we give the exports from Russia from August 1 to October 17: Wheat, 23,168,000 bus.; rye, 13,976,000 bu.; barley, 10,920,000 bu.; oats, 8,560,000 bu.; corn, 2,016,000 bu. To-day the statement of Russian crops, printed yesterday, is said to be unofficial and unreliable.

Up to our going to press nothing concerning Russia has been denied and it looks as though that agony was over, and out of the list of sensations. We believe, however, that the actual discontinuance of exports from there will have an ultimate strengthening effect on markets on this side.

Another agony concerning the cold wave, is also over for the present, and no harm to the growing wheat has resulted. This fact, more than anything else, was the weakening element in the deal to-day.

Liverpool is reported as closing steady except for futures. Dec. 3-4d lower and January 1-4d higher. Paris closed higher. Antwerp quiet. Berlin shade higher. Farmers' deliveries in England this week 643,000 bus., at an average of 37s 2d per quarter against 36s 7d in previous week.

The government report of exports of breadstuffs, printed herein, gives the immense result of $2,251,641 bus. sent out in flour and wheat since July 1st to Nov. 1st. One-third of the crop year. This movement is at the rate of almost 250,000,000 bus. for the year. Besides the wheat and flour, there has been sent out over sixty millions bus. of Rye, against 250,000 bus. in the same time in 1890.

A telegram from Chicago states that wheat in private elevators in that city aggregates 4,500,000 bus., instead of 1,500,000 bus. as previously estimated.

New York opened 3-8c lower on December and closed 7-8c lower. November, 3-4c lower. November corn, 1-4c lower, and December 1-3c higher. Oats unchanged.

After New York closed Chicago declined to a loss of 1c on December, but recovered and closed 3-8c lower. November recovered and closed 3-8c lower. November corn 5-8c and November oats 5-8c higher.

In Toledo.

Business in wheat has been light, in all positions. In futures there was less doing than for any for a long time. The market has been weak, and prices have been 1c lower on the basis of Dec. and closed for Dec. and May 1-2c lower. On the call Dec. sold at 99 1-4c and May at $1 06 to $1 05 7-8. After the call Dec. sold at 99 1-4c to 98 1-2c and closed at 99c. May sold at $1 05 7-8 to $1 05 1-2 and closed at $1 05 3-4.

Cash wheat was not in request and the sales were light. No. 2 soft sold and closed at 98c, a loss of 1-2c. No. 3 soft at 94 1-2c to 94 3-4c. No. 4 soft at 88 1-2c. Rejected No. 2 at 79 1-2c. Wheat and rye, 90c. No. 1 white at 96 1-2c.

Corn—No. 2 at 58c. No. 3 new at 45 1-2c. No. 4 at 43c. No. 3 yellow at 47c. On the call May sold at 44 1-2. Oats—No. 2 at 32c. No. 3 at 30 1-2c. Rye was a shade lower. No. 2 at 95 1-2c. No. 3 at 92c. Rejected at 90c.

Clover seed—A large business was reported, and prices are 10c to 15c higher. The demand was large and urgent, and the market wears a very strong look. On the call December sold at $4 95@4 97 1-2, and January at $5 05. After the call prime for cash at $5 00; December early at $5 00; January at $5 05; February at $5 12 1-2@5 10; No. 2 at $4 75@4 85; old prime at $4 75.

New York, Nov. 14.—Money 3 1-2 per cent. Exchange quiet; posted rates 481 1-2@484 1-2; actual rates 480 1-2 for 60 days and 483 1-2 for demand.

Governments steady; currency 6s 111 bid; 4s coupon 116 bid; extended 2s registered 99 1-2 bid.

Lackawanna, whisky trusts, Atchison, Reading, St. Paul, Burlington, Erie, Northern Pacific pfd and Delaware & Hudson were the most conspicuous in the half day's trading on the stock exchange to-day. Dealings were very limited in the remainder of the list. At the opening the market was firm and prices continued firm for all but the coal shares throughout the first hour. The weakness of the latter, however, was slight. Lackawanna, which was the weakest of the group, declined only 1-2 per cent. The strong speculative was whisky trust. Its price advanced from 55 to 56 1-2. During the closing hour Delaware & Hudson was the feature. Its price suddenly dropped from 123 to 121, and later recovered a portion of the loss. The remainder of the list continued firm, notwithstanding the unfavorable bank statement, which showed a loss of $2,467,000 in the reserve. The closing prices were fractionally higher than yesterday. The sales amounted to 142,721 shares.

New York, Nov. 14.—Flour fairly active and strong; city mill extra, $5 25 for West Indies; Minnesota extra, $3 65@5 60; fine, $2 90@3 65; superfine, $3 25@3 90. TOLEDO WINDMILL COMPANY.

Meeting of Directors Yesterday—The Institution in a Flourishing Condition.

The directors of the Toledo Windmill company met yesterday afternoon at the office of Merrill & Eastell, and called in 10 per cent. of the unpaid stock subscriptions.

The company has been remarkably successful this season, and the orders at present are so large that the 10 per cent. has been assessed in order to lay in a large supply of lumber to meet the orders during the winter. The windmills manufactured by the company have been sent to every state and territory in the country, and even hilltops in the South American republics proclaim Toledo's enterprise through the agencies of the windmills.

THE WHEELING SWITCHMEN.

The Views Held by Both Sides To-Day.

The strike on the Wheeling is being conducted in an unusually quiet manner, so quiet in fact that it was thought that the trouble was ended and peace restored. A different state of affairs exists, however. The men are not interfering with the company's property in any manner, neither are they endeavoring to prevent the company from operating the yards, providing they can procure men to do the work. They do not offer to harm any man at work, but will not allow him to ply his trade he is permitted to work in peace. Quite a number of the men thus far have been induced to quit, and by this means the strikers hope to win the day.

The men demand Lake Shore pay, which they claim is $60 a month for helpers and $65 for conductors, day work, and $65 for helpers and $75 for conductors, night work. A month consists of all the working days, 10 hours each, and pay for overtime at the same rate.

They further claim that the Wheeling pays $2.75 a day for helpers and $2.60 for conductors with no overtime, and a day covering from 11 to 15 hours. They also demand that Reuben Danzey be reinstated, whom they claim was discharged for the reason that he was a member of a committee that demanded the increase.

A Bee called on General Superintendent Woodford this morning, and inquired into the situation with regard to the strike, and he said: "We hired four or five men yesterday, and these, with a half dozen we had employed to go to work to-day, refused because they had been frightened by the strikers. Only this morning they endeavored to induce a man named Bell to quit. Failing in this they went to his home and got his wife out of a sick bed and told her that her husband was switching in the Wheeling yards and would be sure to be killed if he remained. She came down to the yards frantic, and the result was the man refused to switch.

"The men have presented several petitions, and I have conceded at least 75 per cent. of what they asked, and have done everything possible to have them go to work. We have now arranged for other men, and in a few days will be running as usual. Yesterday we moved about 200 cars of the Belt, and so far to-day we have moved as many more, and the Wheeling has delivered during the last 48 hours, to its connections, over 150 cars. So you see we are far from being tied up. All negotiation with the strikers is at an end, and I will have nothing to do with any of them."

TO BE FITTED UP FOR DANCING.

Mr. Frank W. Kibbe has leased Walbridge hall for a term of years, and will at once make an outlay of $500 for papering, painting and furnishing the hall, which, when completed, will be one of the finest furnished halls in the city. It will be used exclusively for dancing school purposes.

THE CANAL ON THE HUMP.

To-day closes the fiscal year at the canal collector's office, and a most gratifying showing is made. Capt. Alexander makes report that last year there were 279 clearances, while this year the number reaches an even 400. The increase in receipts amounts to nearly $1,000. Hurrah for the Miami & Erie canal, Toledo end!

SPLENDID STOCK.

The Toledo stockholders of the Turnbull Wagon works are rejoicing this morning over the receipt of checks for an extra dividend of 5 per cent., making 17 per cent. for the year. Under the superior management of Mr. A. H. Wood the Turnbull company is one of the best manufactories in the United States. Its growth is phenomenal but its strength is enduring.

THE DAIRY MAIDS' FESTIVAL.

The ladies in charge of the Dairy Maids' Festival to be given under the auspices of the Church of Our Father, have prepared a souvenir of the occasion, which gives complete details of the affair, which will be held next Friday night. Dr. Thorne and Mr. Clark's family will have the sincere sympathy of their numerous friends in their bereavement.

THE BRASS WORKERS.

The Brass Workers held a large and interesting meeting at room 20, Worthington block, last evening. Amendments to the new constitution were presented and acted upon. One of them, Sec. 1, Art. 12, is so amended as to give all workers in the trade able to earn average wages a chance to join all locals. This will afford an opportunity to all men in the trade to join. No. 20's meetings will be held every second Tuesday in room 20, Worthington block, corner Adams and Superior.

THE WOMAN'S RECORDER.

On the Bee table is the first number of Mrs. C. Q. Murphy's woman's paper, The Woman's Recorder. It is an eight-page paper, well printed, and with a bright and inviting look, typographically speaking. The subject matter does credit to its setting, and the topics discussed cover a wide range of subjects in which women are interested, or ought to be. The editorials describe the mission of the paper, and the question of the near future, the granting to Ohio women the right of school suffrage, is discussed. Among contributors this week are Miss Florence Belgarnie and Miss Frances Willard. Success and long life to the new Toledo paper, The Woman's Recorder.

Heiskell's Ointment cures itch.

Roll Potter has a copy of the Lockport, N. Y., Daily Union, which is printed in red, white and blue, with a liberal supply of roosters, all on account of the triumph in New York. A fine outline picture of Governor Flower adorns the first page. The paper is unique, to say the least, and Ohio democrats can only regret they are not in it with the New Yorkers.

Caution.—Beware of imitators in South Bend and elsewhere who copy Miss Flora A. Jones' advertisements, circulars, and letters. Get the genuine Blush of Roses, which you will always find at reliable druggists.

IN THE TRUST.

Johnnie—Hello, Tommy, what does your mother give you for cutting that kindlinwood?"

Tommie (cheerfully)—Nothin'."

Johnnie—Is that all?

Tommie—Yes, but she does give me something if I don't cut it.

Johnnie—What?

Tommie (significantly pointing over his shoulder)—See that strap?

Johnnie—Ugh. Got one like it in our woodshed, too.

THE BEST AUTHORITIES.

Such as Dr. Dio Lewis, Prof. Gross, and others, agree that catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It therefore requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which effectually and permanently cures catarrh. Thousands praise it.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, jaundice, biliousness, sick headache, constipation and all troubles of the digestive organs.

Of Course It Was Empty.

A suspicious looking tramp was arrested in Chicago for having in his possession a pocket book, which he was supposed to have stolen.

"I didn't steal it," replied the tramp.

"How did you come by it, then?"

"I found it."

"What did you do with the money that was in it?"

"There was no money in it; it was empty."

"Where did you find it?"

"In front of the tax collector's office."

"Then you are all right. If you found the pocket book there it probably belonged to some poor devil who had just paid his taxes, and of course it was empty."—Texas Siftings.

The bright and cute things children say at times always possess a great interest for me. I heard one the other day from Doc Manning's youngest. Doc is now one of the inspectors in the United States warehouse, but he used to be a newspaper man, and during that time he became a member of the Press club. Doc is rather a social fellow, and seldom misses any of the receptions and parties the club gives. Sometimes he goes to a stag party. The children at home had evidently heard papa and mamma discussing the subject of stag parties, for one evening as Doc was making preparations for one of them one of the children inquired: "Say papa, what do they do at stag parties? Do they hunt stags?"

At this the little one undertook to answer for her father, "Why, Fretty," she exclaimed, "how you talk; course they don't hunt stags at stag parties; that's where they go to stagger."—Chicago Press.
